Three Wounded by Shotgun, Man Held

CHARLESTON - Elmer Jackson, 66, and Aubrey Griffin, 48, are in the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston, in critical condition from gunshot wounds sustained Monday afternoon. Mrs. Griffen received minor wounds in the gunplay.

According to Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons, ill feelings between Lyman Estes, 55, and the Jackson and Griffen families led to the two shootings.

Estes was apprehended near Burfordville in Cape Girardeau county and placed in the New Madrid county jail.

The sheriff's office charged that Estes Monday went to two homes, where the shootings took place. A 12 gauge single barrel shotbun was the weapon.

The first shooting took place at 5:30 p.m. in front of the Elmer Szeva home, one and one-half miles east of the old Bridges school. There Jackson was shot.

Authorities charged that Estes then drove one and a half miles east, where he shot Mr. and Mrs. Griffin.

Sheriff Simmons said charges against Estes would be filed pending further investigation.

Mobile Home Area Will Be Developed

A 100-acre mobile home subdivision between the Moore Company and Presley Travel Trailer Sales near Interstate 55 is in preliminay stages of development.

R. D. Clayton, real estate developer, announced this morning he has sold 144 acres to MaCalco, Inc., Springfield for the subdivision. Fourty-four acres are intended for commercial purposes. A 10-acre recreational park will be a part of the sub-division.

Clayton, who sold the land, said that lots and mobile homes will be sold to persons desiring to live there.

Clayton said the transaction was made after Orville McDowell, president of Future Security Life Insurance Company, Springfield, a company owned by MaCalco, selected the location. McDowell is a newphew of J. C. McDowell, who formerly was judge of the Scott, Mississippi and Cape County circuits court.

Clayton said there also will be land available for rental purposes.

A survey of the land, which runs about one mile north along I-55, has been completed. Dean Saxton, Springfield, will be the developer for MaCalco.

This is a first of its type in the mid-west," Clayton said. "McDowell said the site and readily determined the need of such a facility for the Sikeston and New Madrid areas."

Burglary Attempt Fails, Three Nabbed

MATTHEWS – An attempted burglary at 2 a.m. today of the Waltrip Grocery store by three teenagers resulted in their capture.

A neighbor, Lois Andrews, heard noise in the store and notified City Marshal Pete Burch and Deputy Marshal Loy Yancey.

The officers apprehended two of the youths in the store and a third in a car near the store.

The youths had gathered up more than 30 cartons of meats, cigarettes, toothpaste and razor blades. They were about to leave the building when the officers entered.

Apprehended were Howard L. Moran, 19, Fulton, Ky.; a 15-year-old juvenile from South Fulton, Tenn., who was in the store with Moran, and a 16-year-old juvenile, also of South Fulton, waiting in the car.

A search disclosed a 25 caliber automatic pistol in the shirt of Moran.

The three youths did not resist. They were taken to the New Madrid county jail in New Madrid.

$3,000 Theft At Hayti

HAYTI – The Barkowitz Clothing store was robbed of $3,000 between Sunday night and Monday morning. Entrance was gained through the roof.

The money came from a safe, which was broken into and emptied.

Also taken were between 700 store stock certificates.

The thieves attempted to break in the back door but failed.

Thieves Lift Cash Register From Station

Clarense Cecil, 504 Daniel, an attendant at the Southside Service Station, South Kingshighway, reported to police at 1:27 a.m. today that a cash register was stolen from the station containing $140.

Cecil told police the register was taken while he was in an adjoining cafe. He said the theft occurred at 1:10 a.m.

Police also reported this morning that a 1968 Chevrolet belonging to Albert I. Kappler, 735 East Kathleen, was damaged by an unidentified driver at 3 a.m. Monday.

The car was parked in front of the home when damaged. No estimate was given.

Thieves Seize Compressor

PORTAGEVILLE – An air compressor valued at $450 was stolen Sunday night from the River Grain Company on the Mississippi River upper landing near here.

The theft was discovered Monday and reported to the state patrol.

Hearnes Releases Formal Special Session Guidelines

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) – Gov. Warren E. Hearnes today released his formal proclamation calling the General Assembly into special session next Monday for the primary purpose of boosting corporate and individual income tax rates to bring in an additional $65 million a year in revenue.

The proclamation was dated Aug. 30, but was being mailed out to members of the Legislature today.

It called for the convening of the two houses in special session at 5 p.m. Sept. 8 and said:

"I do hereby state that the action of that body is deemed necessary concerning each matter specifically stated and especially designated hereinafter as follows:

"1.Individual and corporate income tax measures for the sole purpose of increasing the general revenue funds of the State of Missouri.

"2.An increase in the interest rate and sale price permitted by law on the bonds of municipalities and other subdivisions and districts of the state.

"3. Suppelemental appropriations for the period ending June 30, 1970, for the funding of enactments of the 75th General Assembly.

"4.Such additional and other matters as may be recommended by the governor by special message to the general assembly after it shall have been convened."

The final paragraph left open the call so Hearnes could add other topics later if they became necessary in his consideration.

Hearnes decided last Friday to call the special session after the Senate Majority Leader, Sen. A. Basey VanLandingham, DColumbia, assured him a canvass showed a minimum of 18 Senators committed to vote for the income tax increase bill.

Four Charged with Driving Offense

Four were charged with careless driving during the holiday weekend, police reported this morning.

Charged are Gretta K. Davis, 841 Mary, R. A. Manker, 218 Edwards, J. R. Scarbrough, 320 Kramer, and Little John Lett, route three, Sikeston.

Three were charged with public intoxication. They are R. W. Waldrop, 309 Pam, Leroy Holmes, 204 Fuchs, and James Wren Jr., 237 Watson. Holmes also is charged with disturbing the peace.

Dorothy Long, Benton, is charged with shoplifting.

Ernie Adams, 512 Smith, is charged with assault.

Council Adopts Health Planning

MALDEN – It was decided by more than 30 individuals, representing health - oriented organizations and governmental agencies, at a meeting at the Bootheel Economic Development Council to adopt comprehensive health planning for the six- county area.

The department of health, education and welfare has been encouraging the available planning in multi- county regions to make improved health services available on a coordinated basis. The planning is a means of coordinating activities of all elements involved in personal and environmental health services.

A health council will be created and will be composed of representatives from the health profession, along with other citizens interested in the health care needs. The council will have the responsibility of developing the health objectives, priorities, and strategies for meeting health needs of residents. It will review federally financed health projects and recommend that proposals for federal grants be accepted or rejected.

At the meeting, the Rev. Fr. Wally Ellinger of the Immaculate Conception Church in New Madrid was elected Chairman, nd Jack Tipton, administrator of the Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital, Hayti was elected vice chairman of a steering committee that will assist in the creation of the council.

Any individual, organization or agency who desires representation on the council, should notify either Father Ellinger, Tipton, or Philip Shelton at the Bootheel Economic Development Council office before Sept. 15.

Farm Water Pump Stolen

DIEHLSTADT – An electric water pump was stolen Monday night belonging to Harry Warren Sr., who lives near Diehlstadt, Scott County Sheriff John Dennis reported.

Dennis said the pump, valued at $140, was used to water livestock. The pump pipe was broken off in the ground.

Three Fined for Disturbance At Restaurant

PORTAGEVILLE - Police were called to the Hickory Villege restaurant Saturday night at 3:30 a.m., where a group of young men were accused of being unruly and using foul language.

They were arrested and brought before Police Judge, Ernie Fisher, before being released.

They were; Moe Xellums, 20, of Portageville, charged with peace disturbance, fined $25.; Perry Gouch, of Portageville, peace disturbance, fined $25.; and, Jimmy Blanchard, 20, of Portageville, peace disturbance, fined $25.

Others fined Saturday night were; Willie Brown, 20 of Alabama, public drunkness, fined $15; Joseph Davis, 21, of Marston, public drunkness, fined $15.; Miss Cora Petty of Portageville, drunk and disorderly conduct and peace disturbance, fined $25.; and Mike Totty of Portageville, peace disturbance, fined $25.

Nixon Defends Plan To Reform Welfare

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) – President Nixon has told the nation's governors not to look for an outpouring of new federal funds as a byproduct of peace in Vietnam.

The President also defended his welfare reform program in a speech to the 61th National Governors Conference Monday and advised the state executives against trying to tamper with it.

But the conference was to act today on a resolution urging that the federal rovernnent take over the financing of the entire welfare system.

"He said he was going to put the money where the problems are," said New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, chief promoter of the takeover proposal, a five year plan which goes far beyond the Nixon recommendations.

Nixon flew from his summer White House in San Clemente, Calif., for his defense of his domestic programs, and told his critics:

"I make just one suggestion –we've been on a road for a long time that is leading us to disaster and when you're on the wrong road you get off and get on a new road."

Nixon told the governors at their black tie conference ball there are "hard budget and tax decisions ahead."

"Dreams of unlimited billions of dollars being released once the war in Vietnam ends are just that–dreams," he said. "True, there will be additional money–but the claims on it already are enormous.

"There should be no illusion that what some call the peace and growth dividend will automatically solve our national problems or release us from the need to establish priorities.

"In order to find the money for new programs," said Nixon, "we will have to trim it out of old ones."

Said Democratic Gov. John N. Dempsey of Connecticut: "I'm not so sure that if the war ended tomorrow there couldn't be billions of dollars. There must be. Frankly, I was disappointed in the speech. I had hoped to hear a speech of a constructive nature."

One of Nixon's chief advisers, Arthur Burns, counsellor to the President, said Monday "of course there will" de more money available after the war. Burns said if the conflict ended immediately it would free $8 billion in federal funds during the next 10 months. But he did not say whether prior claims already had committed such funds.

Manhunt Nabs Two Burglary Suspects

MEXICO, Mo. (AP)–Two of three burglary suspects were captured after an extensive manhunt Monday. The third is still at large.

Participating in the search was the Highway Patrol, sheriff's officers from Audrain and Boone Aounty, and police from Mexico and Fulton.

The search started after two men and a woman were found in the rural home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McGuire on Route E west of Mexico.

When the McGuires and their daughter returned from a visit to a neighbor, a scuffle and gun battle broke out and the three intruders fled. No one apparently was injured.

The manhunt, aided by the patrol's helicopter, resulted in the capture of Carol Ann Miller, 21, and Robert Enzor, both of Kansas City.

McGuire told police his home had been burglarized previously. His wife said she believed the three were awaiting their return in order to force the family to open a safe.

No Driver License, Bell Citian Fined

Joe Ray Jr., Bell City, was fined $25 and sentenced to 60 days in jail this morning in magistrate court for failure to have a driver's license. Ray told Judge M. E. Montgomery he had never had a license and had never made an effort to obtain one.

The jail term will be suspended if Ray pays the fine and court costs.

Sylvester Ray, Bell City, was fined $10 for allowing an unlicensed driver to operate his car.

The judge suspended the remainder of a 60-day jail sentence for Allen Carmack, route four, Sikeston, who was sentenced last week for exposing himself in public. Carmack also has a $25 fine pending on the charge, which will have to be paid, according to James E. Moore III, assistant Scott County prosecuting attorney.

Judge Montgomery reduced bond from $10,000 to $5000 for Leonard Jackson, 31, 214 Fellner, who is charged with first degree murder of Willie Motton, Sikeston. Motton was shot Aug. 23, three times in Sunset with a .38 caliber pistol. Jackson is scheduled for a preliminary hearing Sept. 16.

James Robertson, 230 Fellner, and Arthur Jackson, 160 Westgate, both appeared in court without attorneys. They are charged with felonious theft. Judge Montgomery appointed James Sickal as counsel for Jackson. Robertson told the court he could obtain a lawyer, but had not been able to make a telephone call. Moore told Robertson: "You gotta ask," to make a phone call, "because the sheriff can't lead you around all over the place." Both cases were continued until next week.

Judge Montgomery appointed Fielding Potashnick as counsel for Jerry Harris, Chicago, Ill., who is charged with felonious assault. John Bobbie Harris, 227 Young, who is charged with the same offense, told the court he has not made a phone call for a lawyer since being in jail. Sheriff John Dennis said he has not made a request. They are charged with firing 12 gauge shotguns into a crowd of people in Sunset on Aug. 1.

Frederick Otto, route one, Benton, appeared in court on a felonious theft charge of stealing a car. Otto said he is unable to hire an attorney. "You need one," Judge Montgomery said, "for you are right in the middle of some serious trouble." Charles Matthews was appointed counsel for Otto. Otto is charged with stealing a 1966 Chevrolet last week from Jerry Rusdrich, Morehouse.

A felonious theft charge against Wendell McDonald, 349 School, was continued until Sept. 16. He is charged with stealing some tools at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Gladys Harbison, Neptune, N. J., failed to appear in court to face careless driving charge. A $100 bond was forfeited and a warrant was issued.

Charges of speeding and resisting arrest against Raymond Orr, Charleston, was dismissed.

Charles Hampton, Sikeston, was fined $15 for failure to have a driver's license.

Gary Fisher, Charleston, and Stephen Lasley, Kennett, were fined $15 and $20 respectively on speeding charges.

J. D. Cross, 102 Heath, was fined $10 for failure to have a driver's license.

$8,000 Theft At Hayti

HAYTI – The Barkowitz Clothing store was robbed of $3,000 between Sunday night and Monday morning. Entrance was gained through the roof.

The money came from a safe, which was broken into and emptied.

Also taken were between 700 store stock certificates.

The thieves attempted to break in the back door but failed.

Pilots Threaten Strike If Syria Detains Israelis

Two Israeli men who were aboard a hijacked American airliner remained in Syrian custody today, and the international airline pilots' organization threatened a 24-hour strike if they are not freed by next Monday.

The plane's four other Israeli passengers, three women and a teen-age girl, returned to Tel Aviv Monday after 64 hours in Damascus. Ninety-five passengers of other nationalities and the airliner's crew of 12 were released Saturday.

A man and a woman from the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a guerrilla organization, diverted the Trans World Airlines Boeing 707 jet to Damascus Friday after it left Rome for Tel Aviv.

The executive committee of the 44,000-member International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations met in Paris Monday and drafted a statement calling on the United Nations to take immediate action to free the passengers and ensure the hijackers would be punished.

Ole Forsberg, Finnish president of the organization, said he had cabled the membership asking for a strike authorization, and he expected overwhelming approval.

"If the passengers are not freed before Sept. 8, we will go on strike" 15 days later, he said.

In Cairo, meanwhile, leaders of the four countries directly involved in hostilities with Israel began meeting to coordinate military and other policies.

Canoeists Complete Cleanup

EMINENCE, Mo. (AP)–More than 100 canoe enthusiasts from five states finished a three-day cleanup of a stretch of the Current River in southern Missouri Monday.

They gathered 283 burlap sack of trash, mainly beer cans, soft drink cans and bottles. There also were such things as tires, bedsprings, a lawnmower, a washing machine, sheet metal, a wheel barrow and a sewing machine.

The volunteers covered 26 miles from the Cedar Grove access point to Round Spring.

About 50 canoes took part in this 10th annual cleanup sponsored by the Ozark Wilderness Waterways Club, which is primarily based in Kansas City. Persons from St. Louis, Memphis, Tenn., Arkansas, Tulsa, Okla., Topeka and Lawrence, Kan., joined in the campaign.

Keith Couch, Overland Park, Kan., president of the club, said the trash collection was not as big as in other years, probably because the Natioal Park Service started about a year ago making periodic cleanups.

Traffic Toll Takes 583 Lives

Traffic accidents across the nation claimed 583 lives during the three-day Labor Day weekend.

Although late reports were expected to raise the toll higher, it appeared the final figure would fall short of the Labor Day record of 688, set during last year's observance.

For comparison purposes, The Associated Press made a survey of traffic deaths over a threeday nonholiday weekend earlier this summer. The total was 435.

The National Safety Council had estimated in advance that highway deaths over this summer's last long holiday weekend would total 625 to 725. The weekend began 6 p.m., local time, Friday and ended at midnight Monday.

Columnist Drew Pearson Has Fatal Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) – Columnist Drew Pearson, whose reports on skeletons in government closets put him in the center of numerous controversies, is dead at the age of 71.

He suffered a heart attack Monday at his Maryland farm and was dead on arrival at Georgetown Hospital.

For almost four decades Pearson wrote "The Washington Merry-Go-Round," which carried his version of behind-the-scenes government action. He often raised the ire of officials, and two presidents called him a liar.

Jack Anderson, co-author the past 10 years, said he will continue the column which is carried in 625 daily and weekly newspapers including the Daily Standard.

Pearson's most recent major crusade in 1966-67 led to a Senate censur of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., after allegations he had used political funds for personal purposes.

It was President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman who denounced Pearson. Roosevelt called him a liar when the columnist reported Secretary of State Cordell Hull wanted to see Russia "bled white" during World War II.

Truman once referred to Pearson as an "s.o.b." after several columns which angered the President.

And the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis., resorted to physical violence during a long feud with Pearson in the 1950s. McCarthy admitted hitting Pearson with his hand at a fashionable club in Washington; the columnist said the senator kicked him in the groin.

The squabble got into the courts in a $5.1 million damage suit brought by Pearson against McCarthy and several others, including the late columnist Westbrook Pegler. It was dropped later.

This was only one of a number of court suits in which Pearson was plaintiff or defendant.

Although controversial, Pearson was affable, old-mannered and a Quaker. He sponsored the Friendship Train that collected 700 carloads of food for France and Italy after World War II.

Born Andrew Russell Pearson at Evanston, Ill., he was the son of a college professor who later was governor of the Virgin Islands. He was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Swarthmore College in Pennsylvania.

While wormking for the Baltimore Sun, Pearson and Robert S. Allen wrote a book called "The Washington Merry-go-Round" which promised to tell "the gossip which the Capital loves to whisper but hates to see in print."

The book and a sequel launched the column which Allen gave up in 1942 to re-enter the Army.

He once said of himself, of his aides, that "any S.O.B. who thinks he can cause any of those people to discharged by me, by some smart-aleck statement over the air or in the paper, he has got another think coming."

Pearson retorted that "if Mr. Truman is trying to discourage the right of fair comment, then he, too, has another think coming."

Pearson's first marriage in 1925 to the Countess Felicia Gizycka, daughter of Eleanor "Cissy" Patterson, publisher of the Washington Times-Herald, ended in divorce.

In 1936 he married Luvie Moore, who survives along with a daughter, Ellen Arnold, and a stepson, Tyler Abell, former U.S. chief of protocol.

A memorial service will be at 11 a.m. EDT Thursday in the Washington National Cathedral. After cremation the ashes will be taken to the Pearson farm.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
SIDEWALKS ALIVE AGAIN WITH CHILDREN

All summer long - and, looking back, it now seems a rather brief time - the children were scattered around the landscape. Between the park, playground and pool, away at camp or on family vacation trips, or just in idle backyard games, theiers was a dispersed presence. As always now in early September, then, it is with a little start that we see them clustering by the dozens on the streets and sidewalks leading to the school buildings.

These are mornings for a return to the household discipline of early, orderly hours and dress. The formal learning process resumes and the children go back to school for the daytime hours. For most it is back to the same friends and building, moving up one grade this fall. For many, however, it is a whole new world: The kindergartener, curiosity overcoming fear in this first adventure away from the familiar security of home; for the new high school student, budding into maturity as he moves up to a larger, more complex community.

To the motorist, this annual procession back to the neighbor schoolyard brings a twinge of reminder. That special sign, often a brilliant orange color, "School zone, 20 miles an hour," has resumed the meaning it lacked these last three months. It is more a warning to slow down and be alert. At the school sites, solemn, sternfaced young safety patrolmen guard the crossings. But it is along the routes to and from school that playfulness or thoughtlessness can bring a sudden dart into the street.

The responsible driver along these streets these mornings and afternoons is prepared for the unexpected, whether passing a knot of frolic - some youngsters on the sidewalk or a covey of weaving bicycles. Slow, very slow, and pay close attention, those are the watchwords. To kill a child - unthinkable.

An evaluatio of competition should provide the retailer with a basis for determining the kind and amount of advertising he needs.

Unfortunately, many retailers tend to see competition only in terms of similar stores in the local community. Actually, the most serious competition may come from entirely different types of retail outlets, some of them at distant locations.

For instance, a lumber company which specializes in selling supplies for renovating homes may not appear to have a strong local competitor. The situation could cause the lunber company to curtail advertising with disastrous results.

Home renovation is an optional activity in most instances. It is undertaken only when it promises to bring satisfactions superior to other goods and services in which family savings could be invested.

Thus, in a real sense, the lumber company is in direct competition with the automobile dealer, the real estate agent, the distant vacation resort, the stock broker, and other dispensers of expensive goods and services. All are attempting to attract business from the same financial reserve.

The family which chooses a new car or an expensive vacation in preference to home renovation has chosen what appears to be a more satifying alternative. Indeed, the purchase of a new home may appear to be a more beneficial expenditure than renovation.

Of course, when a major buying decision is made, it is not always the best one. When local advertising is unbalanced in favor of one type of consumer benefit, buying decisions are made on the basis of incomplete information. Regardless of merit, the poorly advertised choice will not get due consideration.

TO REACH THE UNREACHABLE STAR

The accusation is often made, especially by the younger generation, that America is a nation of hypocrites. We proclaim a lot of noble ideals in our Declaration of Independence and Constitution but we fail to live up to them.

Adolf A. Berle, professor emeritus of law at Columbia University, recently made a reply to that charge which bears repeating, even though he is well past 30 and is a senior member of the Establishment.

Addressing a gathering of school superintendents in New York, the former assistant secretary of state, ambassador and government consultant agreed with the accusation of national shortcomings.

"A good teacher, far from denying this, would at once admit its truth," said Berle. "But he would add something surprising.

"He would say that no society would be worth the price of admission if it did not proclaim ideals which were beyond its present realization. For that matter, no man ever lived up to his ideals either.

"If ever American society fulfills all its ideals, it would be because the ideals were outrageously low. Seeking goals beyond your reach is essential - in fact, it is the first principle of government."

History, said Berle, is the record of the painful attempts by society to seek levels beyond its immediate reach and, if ever it has realized them, to seek still higher goals.

Another way of putting it might be to paraphrase the words of the poet: A nation's reach should exceed its grasp -- or what's a younger generation for?

Too many youthful reformers, however, blessed with instant wisdom, appear ready to throw out the baby with the bath water and the teachers along with their teachings.

Their reach, regrettable, exceeds their grasp of history or of human nature.

(FROM THE MARYLAND GAZETTE, ANNAPOLIS)
PHILADELPHIA JULY 8.
IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776

Resolved, That the board of war be empowered to employ such a number of persons as they shall find necessary to manufacture flints for the continent; and for this purpose to apply to the respective assemblies, conventions, and councils or committees of safety of the United American States, or committees of inspection of the counties and towns thereto belonging, for the names and places of abode of persons skilled in the manufactory aforesaid, and of the places in their respective states where the best flint stones are to be obtained, with samples of the same.

By order of Congress,
JOHN HANCOCK, President
WAR OFFICE, Philadelphia, July 6, 1776.

ALL persons in the United American States, who are able to inform the congress of any quantities of flint stone, or of any persons who are skilled in the manufacture of flints, are requested to apply in person or by letter, to the board of war ordnance, at the war-office, in Market-Street, near the corner of fourth street. - All printers of news papers in the several states are desired to insert this advertisement.

Schools have opened in Missouri. With this in mind, Colonel E.I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, today called upon parents and drivers to do their part to protect youngsters from being involved in a traffic accident.

"Thousands of children are returning to the classrooms in Missouri," Hockaday noted. "They will be walking and riding to school in a carefree mood. Parents should instruct their youngsters on the rules of safe walking and drivers should be especially alert near schools."

The Patrol Superintendent stated that parents should understand traffic regulations and control measures and make sure their children also understand them. Parents, as pedestrians, should always set a good example for children. This includes both ways before crossing a street. Parents should also instill in their children the attitude that safety rules must be given the same respect and obedience as other rules of conduct learned at home and in school.

"Motorists must do their part to protect youngsters from death or injury in traffic", the Colonel continued. "They should be especially alert in school areas for signs, signals, traffic police, school patrols and for children themselves. Drivers must keep in mind that children are unpredictable and that they must think for these young pedestrians."

Colonel Hockaday urged parents and drivers to accept their responsibility in the protection of school children. He noted that children are our stock in the future and everything possible must be done to insure their safety in traffic.

A GOOD QUESTION

Now that Christmas is over, there are the usual laments about how commercial it has become. The noted author and columnist, Mrs. Peg Bracken, who is perhaps best known for her book "I Hate to Cook," offered a timely thought on the commercialism of Christmas just before the holidays. She said, "Of course Christmas is commercially colored as what holiday isn't? Few of us grow our own Easter lilies anymore, or our own Halloween pumpkins. But why has 'commercial' become a dirty word? This country is commercial, among many other things. It was our talented commercialism on top of our talented mass production that enabled us to spread things around so more of us have decent comforts. And the fact that a few of us have such lavish ones that they border on the indecent doesn't alter the basic fact."

Christmas is as good an occasion as any for a little straight economic thinking.

H.L. Hunt Says

U.S. POLICY TOWARD EAST-WEST TRADE

Recently representatives of the U.S. State Department, in testimony before Congress, requested that the Export Control Act be extended. This act, which expired last month, puts limits on trade with Communist countries.

This act should in fact, be extended. Our country should do nothing to bolster the economies of communist nations, especially while U.S. servicemen are fighting communism in South Vietnam.

At the same time the act should be strengthened. U.S. exports to communist bloc countries have increased 56% since 1962 despite its present provisions. Among the items authorized for sale have been rubber, aluminum and magnesium scrap. These items have military significance and undoubtedly may have found their way to North Vietnam for use against our fighting men.

In light of these facts it is disturbing to note that the Commerce Department is reportedly planning to relax some of its controls on East-West trade.

The Office of Export Control is considering action to increase the number of products that may be transshipped from non-communist countries to communist ones, to relax the requirements for individual export licenses for many items, and to process requests for licenses more rapidly.

Industrial chemicals, nuclear radiation testing equipment, and metal-working machinery are among the items which would be more readily available to the communists if these plans are implemented.

The administration made a wise decision in requesting extension of the Export Control Act. But this policy must be consistently applied in all departments of government so that we will do nothing to strengthen our enemy. HLH

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Sen. Ted Kennedy's nightmare of July 18/19 -- when he drove Mary Jo Kopechne off Dyke Bridge to her death in the black waters below-- will be revived tomorrow (Wednesday) at the long-awaited inquest.

Thus far, the participants in the festivities before the tragedy, all Kennedy loyalists, haven't cooperated with District Attorney Edmund Dinis, whose preliminary investigation has raised as many questions as it has answered.

For instance, Deputy Sheriff Christopher S. Look, Jr., who was driving on Chappaquiddick Island the midnight of the accident, has now positively identified the death car as the one he saw heading down Dyke Road at 12:40 in the morning.

"And you are reasonably certain, Mr. Look," asked Dinis's chief investigator, Lt. George Killen, "that the car you saw being pulled out of the water on the morning of Saturday the 19th, that it was the same car that you saw at the intersection of Dyke Road and Chappaquiddick Road at approximately 12:40 - 12:45 a.m. on that same day?"

"Yes sir," said look emphatically.

This was more than an hour after Sen. Kennedy said the accident had occurred.

Look said he had approached the car, thinking the driver might be lost.

"I noticed a man driving and a woman on the other side and either an object or another person in the back seat," he testified. The latter could have been "some clothing or a hat or a pocketbook on the back ledge," he said.

Before he could reach the car, he said, it "drove off down Dyke Road."

OFFERED THREE A LIFT

He continued on his way home and encountered a man and two women strolling near the Chappaquiddick fire station.

"They were acting very happily and unconcerned," recalled Look, "so I stopped and asked them if they would like to have a lift. The girl-- the tall girl in the back closest to me -- said, 'shove off, Bud.' I am not sure whether she said either, 'I am not a pickup' or just 'shove off, buddy.'

"The man was very polite and said, 'Thank you, sir, but we are only going to this cottage house." He pointed to the cottage where the Kennedy party had been holding a cookout. This tends to confirm my original report that the people at the cookout had started to drift off in pairs for a midnight swim. Kennedy invited Mary Jo for a swim, say insiders, about 11:30 P.M.

John Farrar, the first diver to reach Mary Jo's body inside the submerged car, told Dinis's investigators there was a "strong possibility that she could have been rescued if the Senator had reported the accident at once.

Farrar concluded from his underwater examination that an air bubble had formed inside the car and that Mary Jo had survived for several terrifying minutes, trapped in the sunken black Oldsmobile.

Kennedy spent the night, according to my sources, trying to establish an alibi for himself. He left the Island and made a point of being seen by his innkeeper on the mainland at 2:25 a.m. His original idea was to let his cousin, Joe Gargan, take the rap for him. Kennedy changed his mind, however, after crossing back to the Island on the ferry and learning that the accident had been discovered. He decided in the end that he would have to face the consequences for his own actions.

Ferry operator Richard Hewitt told Dinis's investigators that he had delivered Kennedy and two men on the island. They were still at the landing when he returned after another quick crossing. In the meantime, he had learned of the accident.

"Apparently they were waiting for someone to pick them up, and I thought they weren't aware of the accident," reported Hewitt. "So I went over and asked them if they were aware of it. One of the fellows, I believe it was the big fellow, (Paul) Markham, he told me, he said yes, he just heard about it."

SENATOR WALKED AWAY

"Was Senator Kennedy standing with Markham and this other fellow at the time that you told them?" asked Killen.

"As I approached," replied the ferry operator, "Senator Kennedy left the other two men and walked away behind a couple of cars."

The Senator reboarded the ferry and returned to the mainland where he reported to the Edgartown Police Station. Chief Dominick Arena was at the accident scene in swimming trunks when he learned of Kennedy's arrival. The station put Kennedy on the phone, and Chief Arena, ironically, took the call at nearby Dyke House -- the same house that the Senator bypassed after the accident.

"I told the Senator," testified Arena, "that I felt bad, that I was sorry that I had to make this call but it seemed as though there was a tragedy involving his car, and he said he knew.

"I asked him if anybody else was in the car, do you think they are in the water? He said, 'I would like to talk to you.' I said, 'Where would you like to talk to me, over at my office?' He said, I would like to see you over there.'...

"When I reached the station, I met the Senator, and he was there with Paul Markham in my office. They had been using the office phone, and when I got there, I said, 'I am sorry.' Almost the first remark the Senator made was, 'I was driving the car.' "

"How was the Senator dressed at the time he appeared at the station?" asked Killen.

"He had a white sport shirt on, short sleeves and a pair of blue slacks, and he looked neat. He looked physically okay, but he was very depressed and acted very depressed, acted very downtrodden."

For a week after the Chappaquiddick incident, say intimates, he brooded about it and wouldn't discuss the details with his most intimate advisers. They had to depend upon Gargan and Markham for an account of what had happened.

The Senator wept bitterly when he learned that his paralyzed father had been told about the accident and was upset. On another occasion, he couldn't contain his emotions, and the tears flowed again.

The old Kennedy buoyancy still hasn't returned. The signs of strain show on his face. He avoids looking people in the eye. He is a tragically sad figure as he resumes his ordeal this week at the inquest.

Watch your step: This year, says the National Underwriting Company, one out of every nine workers 27 years old will be disabled for a period of at least a week, and 36 per cent of these will be disabled for a month or more. But among 57-year-old workers, one out of every six will be disabled, and 54 per cent of the injured will be disabled for longer than a month.

Household hint: A little diluted ammonia placed in a bowl of water and left in a room overnight will rid the room of stale tobacco odors.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

BEHIND THE CURTAIN:
Romanians Still Cheering Nixon's Type Revolution.

Busteni, Socialist Republic of Romania – It has been this way all along the road from Bucharest to this Carpathian mountain town. Cheers for the Americans. Cheers for Richard Nixon. Cheers, though it is now almost a month since the President visited the Communist capital scores of miles away.

On Bucharest's outskirts a gypsy trio recognizes some strangers as Americans, and while the fiddles didn't exactly cry, they did scratch out that fine American tune, Al Jolson's "Sonny Boy."

In a Munich - like beer hall, Carul Cu Bere, a queenly white-haired lady regally kisses an American newsman and raises her wine glass to our far- off land and President Nixon.

High in the mountains, at Brasov, two school boys hurry down the street to hand the American "journalist" four Romanian stamps as a "gift" to President Nixon.

Nearby, a restaurant owner hears that the Americans have reserved a table. He improvises a small American flag on a stand and the band, searching for American tunes, strikes up the "Indian Love Call," "Rosemarie, I love you" and "My Yiddishe Mama" as the Americans enter.

And in Busteni, pop. 12,500, thousands of chickens, shepherds with 200 sheep apiece and privately owned land in this non- collectivized part of Communist Romania, the people come into the streets to applaud. The mayor's lady offers fine Romanian wine. But the appointment is with His Honor down at City Hall on Bulevardul Libertatii -- the boulevard of freedom.

This is a small town of chicken, sheep, a newsprint plant, a bakery, seven cops, two people on welfare and lots of cheese -- but don't get Mayor Marin Militaru wrong. He's a dedicated Communist. He's just back from the Romanian Communist Party's Tenth Congress. He's 46. He's gently amused at American's multiparty system. He's interested in Mayor Lindsay's election campaign. He's amazed to hear that New York has one million people on welfare. (In Busteni everybody who can works, or no relief).

And he's convinced that Richard Nixon is a "sincere man" -- albeit a a capitalist, and a Republican, to boot.

Mayor Militaru was in Bucharest, with Richard Nixon, when the latter visited President Ceausescu and discussed Vietnam.

Having heard Mr. Nixon then and having been in Bucharest as a delegate to the party Congress when President Nixon came in early August, Mayor Militaru says that what he heard convinces him that the U.S. President tells it as it is. But in quiet terms.

Mind you now, all this comes from a mountain town Communist mayor. He and his people, and the gypsy trio and the regal lady and the boys and women and workers of this state no longer believe Americans are imperialist ogres. And they no longer fear saying so.

This will spread. No one can curtain off valleys, mountains, plains, rivers and even highways reaching across all of Eastern Europe.

The words re-echo from the Carpathians to the Black Sea, the Urals to the Danube. In one month there is a change. This is news as great as victory in some deadly battle.

And Dic Nixon did it.

Not Arthur Schlesinger Jr. Not Ted Sorensen. Not Ted Kennedy.

Not the Galbraiths with their ersatz left- wing political lore nor the Americans for Democratic Action with their infantile leftism. It is Dick Nixon – the man they scorned, the man they flayed, the man they spent more than two decades attempting to destroy physically and psychologically-- who did it.

This is obvious anywhere in Communist Romania. Mostly, this is a literate Latin nation. On its streets are some of Europe's finest bookstores-- one so new that its back wall is of colorful stained glass in modern design. The stalls are loaded with volumes on Marx, Engels, Lenin and the other Communist - Socialist left- wing theoreticians.

If the people here want left-wing thinking they can get it in the original. They have no need for latter- day interpretation by puerile American litterateurs.

They want realism. They want housing. They want supermarkets of the American kind – of which there is one now in oil - rich Ploesti. They want mass- produced cloth -- and dresses and suits, shirts, shoes. They want to live comfortably.

They want it in freedom and dignity.

They want it in the style and standards of America – not the Soviet Union. That's why they cheered Richard Nixon. He's the realism of today, not tomorrow's pie-in- the -sky.

They're not quarreling with their nation's ideology. Actually they don't pay it much heed. They're too preoccupied with their income, or lack of it, too absorbed in seeking what their few dollars can buy. They see America as a gushing cornucopia. And they love it.

They admire the men who have made capitalism work, even if they do fault us on Vietnam. They want the good things of life. They see them embodied in the U.S. and President Nixon. That's why they cheered him -- and continue to cheer Americans.

The Sweater Takes on Length

Designer Giorgio di Sant'Angelo poses (left) with model wearing one of his new long sweaters. His cashmere, second-skin sweater (right) has X-lacing to add dramatic flair. Match this with cashmere and wool pants, straight-legged and wide-ribbed. These designs were created for Dalton of America.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—"Sweaters can't be too long," said Giorgio di Sant'-Angelo, three-time Coty Fashion Award winner.

He has revolutionized the sweater look with long, lean tunics, way-out cardigans and sweaters that don't look like sweaters.

The fashion sweater, as Giorgio sees it, is an all-around garment, great with pants and flattering and fun to wear.

He admits he has often been asked why his new sweaters are so long.

"But it makes sense," he said. "Young people stretch their sweaters. So why not make them long in the first place?

"Older women look better, too, in the long, lean look."

Giorgio has designed an exclusive line of sweaters for Dalton of America which includes lots of pants to match tnese tunics, shirt-waisted sweaters, fluffy angora separates and luxurious cashmere cardigans.

"I'm all for pants," said di Sant'Angelo. "Pants are perfect for sweaters. But they must be sweater pants. Pants that equal the chic of my sweaters should be their teammates."

Florentine-born Giorgio di Sant'Angelo last winter designed a sweater for himself while he was on a visit to his home town. A fashion editor there saw it and asked, "Why don't you design sweaters for women? That one has a whole new look."

He did exactly that—and his sweaters for women have a "whole new look," too.

Giorgio is an architect and industrial engineer, as well as a fashion celebrity.

He came to this country seven years ago to study film animation with Walt Disney. He started designing jewelery in 1965 as a hobby. He became so successful that he switched careers and now does only fashion design.

Curiously enough, di Sant'Angelo, born an Italian count, considers himself an American designer.

"America has the greatest flair and the best designers," he said. "I'm glad to be part of America's fashion creators."

Ann Landers

Mr. Personality Needs To Improve Stories

Dear Ann Landers: I fell in love with a very attractive man whom I met at work. He has a charming personality, makes a wonderful appearance and gave me something to live for after my husband passed away, 17 months ago.

He told me his wife was in a mental hospital and comes home on weekends. He said he wanted to marry me and promised to get a divorce when his wife was well enough to sign the papers. He never mentioned children, but it turns out that he has two. It also turns out that his wife is not a patient in the mental hospital She is a dietician there.

I learned the facts by accident and almost passed out. When I told him what I knew he broke down and cried -- said he had lied because he was afraid of losing me. I told him we were through and asked him not to call me again.

This morning he telephoned to say he had filed for divorce. I want to believe him but it's difficult after what I've been through. Where can I get the facts? Would this be a matter of record? Please advise me. -- Weeping Willow

Dear W.W.: You have the most important fact. That guy is a liar. Give him the deep six.

Dear Ann Landers: Your ignorance is showing again. Recently you said a 14-year-old cocker spaniel is equivalent to a 98-year-old human. Obviously you arrived at this conclusion by multiplying the dog's age by seven. This is an antiquated method long since discarded by canine authorities.

The correct method is as follows: Figure 25 years for the first two years of the dog's life. Add seven to the third year. Then add two years for each remaining year. So you see, Ann, that cocker spaniel if he was a person would have been 54 years old, not 98. And that's pretty young to go. -- I. Gottcha

Dear I.: I don't know who invented the "new" system but I checked with three veterinarians and they said it's so new they've never heard of it. All three agreed that a 14-year-old cocker spaniel would be considered a very senior citizen in anybody's kennel -- and much closer to a 98-year-old human than one 54, Bubela.

Dear Ann Landers: I am in love with a girl who is engaged to marry someone else. The announcement appeared in the paper Sunday and it nearly killed me.

I went with B. for two years. There were times when I didn't treat her exactly right but unfortunately I was uptight about several things and I drank a little too much. I accidentally hit her (she really ran into my fist during an argument) and we broke up over that misunderstanding.

B. has known this guy only four months. I am sure she is marrying him on the rebound. He's nothing to look at and square besides. I called her three times last week and she refused to meet me to talk things over. (She's afraid if she sees me she'll weaken.) Please be my fairy godmother and tell me what I can do. -- Panhandle

Dear Panhandle: You can stop making a pest of yourself. I have no magic wand for a guy who mistreats a girl then bawls his head off when he loses out to someone decent.

Do you feel ill at ease .... out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Brushes Are Beauty Aid

Your beach bag or weekend bag isn't at the ready unless you've tucked one or two hairbrushes in with the rest of your grooming accessories.

The styles for sun and surf are simple, easy to manage and adaptable. A hairbrush is all that's needed for quick repair on windy days or after a dip.

For the pageboy, just use the versatile half-round brush to slick it back to sleekness in seconds.

The upswept hairdo, a natural for long hair, can be back in business after a swim in a jiffy. Once it's fastened in place with bobby pins, the styling brush — that's the relatively narrow kind with five rows of tufts — can be used to restore side curls and tendrils to their proper place.

The latest thing in brushes is the totable kind that fits into a purse or makeup pouch as easily as a comb. There's no need to be without one no matter how compact your packing.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Good Old Nylon Net Serves to 'Firm' Collar

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Good old nylon net! I recently knitted a dress with a cowl neckline but the collar dropped. I took two thicknesses of a matching color nylon net and, using two strands of leftover yarn, lined the collar with about ¼-inch of the net extending beyond the neckline seam and ending about ½-inch from the edge of the collar. It now stands up in a nice roll.—EDITH

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—My husband always sits in a swivel rocker with a maple-finished hardwood trim. The uncovered ends of the arms where he rests his hands are sticky and the finish is coming off. I would like to know how I can refinish the arms so it will last. —DONNA

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. B. J. T. can make a darling coffee table for her porch, den or patio out of her broken ironing board. Add screw-on legs bought at the hardware store, then paint the table top or cover it with vinyl. I have one topped with old-fashioned irons that serve as book-ends. It is quite a conversation piece. A piece of marbleized linoleum, cut to fit the top, also would be effective.—MRS. J. O. A.

DEAR POLLY—If you have difficulty putting slip covers on your furniture, use a spoon to get into the corners. The handle of a wooden spoon is very good for getting into tight places.—PAULINE

DEAR GIRLS—I find a rather dull silver knife is great to use when pushing a slip cover down between the arms, seat and the back and seat.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I would like to tell Ruby that when my bird bath gets slick or green with algae I sweep all the water out, pour in a little liquid bleach and scrub with a long-handled nylon brush. Rinse well with clear water. This lasts for quite awhile.—OLD BACHELOR

Senate Bribe Allegations Reportedly Being Probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allegations that two senators took bribes to influence a government contract are being investigated by a federal grand jury in Baltimore, The Washington Post reported today.

In a copyrighted story, the newspaper said the jury is investigating Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., and former Democratic Sen. Daniel B. Brewster of Maryland. Brewster was defeated for re-election last year.

Long described the allegations as "cock and bull," telling the paper by telephone from Baton Rouge, La., Friday night that someone stole a lot of campaign money and was trying to escape the penitentiary by trying to put Brewster in his place, the Post reported.

U.S. Atty. Stephen H. Sachs of Maryland described as directing the probe, told the Post he has "no specific comment at all, other than to say that a special grand jury in Baltimore has been inquiring into possible violations of federal bribery laws since early this year."

The Post said Brewster is in Ireland and could not be reached for comment.

The newspaper reported the case on which the grand jury is focusing much of its attention involves allegations that Brewster and Long shared a bribe for exerting pressure to get extra costs approved for extensive underground parking facilities recently built for the House in connection with construction of the $100-million-plus Rayburn House office building.

It added that this allegation is that the two were paid to pressure the office of the Capitol architect to approve "extras" for the garages.

The prime contractor for the construction is Baltimore Contractors, Inc., the paper said, adding that its prssident—Victor J. Frenkil—is a contributor to Brewster and the Democratic party and is a friend of Long.

The total price for the underground garages was to be $13.5 million and it was to have been completed by April 1966, the Post said. It added that Frenkil's contract was for $11.7 million.

The Post said that, according to testimony by officials in the Capitol architect's office, the government was not able to use the garage until September 1967.

It added that during construction, Baltimore Contaactors and the Capitol architect's office agreed to add certain "extras," called change orders, to the contract. As of late last week, the Post said, these amounted to more than 100 small orders for additions to the contract—resulting in an additional $384,000 being paid to Baltimore Contractors.

After completion, the Post said, Baltimore Contractors filed claims for $5,021,199 more, contending the government had made special requests of the contractor on the job and that some information on soil conditions had been in error—costing the contractor additional money.

The newspaper said most of these claims by the firm have not been paid by the government.

The paper said the allegations to federal investigators include the contention that Long and Brewster exerted direct pressure on the architect's office to get those extras, and as much of the claims as possible, approved. It is alleged, the Post said, that the senators were to share a percentage of any such windfall profits reaped by the contractors.

Enrollment Same as 1968

EAST PRAIRIE — Total enrollment of 1,815 pupils was recorded at the East Prairie R-2 School district, approximately the same as last year, according to Supt. Ray Milton. This number is expected to be increased followings some additional admissions after the Labor Day holiday, he said.

In the elementary school 1,050 were recorded from kindergarten through the Sixth grade. Webb Junior High showed a 280 pupil enrollment and the East Prairie High School has 475, the records show.

In captivity, the average elephant drinks 60 gallons of water every day, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Improve Care at Hospital

Major changes effecting delivery of service to patients at Farmington State Hospital have been announced by the superintendent, Retus W. Osborn, M.D. Through de-centralization and geographic planning the hospital's psychiatric staff nd facilities have been reorganized to improve the quality and continuity of care a patient may expect to receive.

Insteady of caring for peop in areas of a single hospital complex, units which approximate a total hospital in medical and ancillary services have been set up on three geographic levels. Each unit has an acting clinical director, nursing supervisor, rehabilitation counselor, social worker, hospital grant coordinator and activity coordinator. Wards have been set up for both male and female patients on the unit and each ward is staffed with a psychiatrist, nursing personnel, social worker and mental health expeditors.

Geographic Unit I patients are from the counties of Bollinger, Cape Girardeau, Madison, Perry, Ste. Genevieve, Shannon, Wayne, Ripley, Reynolds, Oregon, Carter and Butler. In Unit II are patients from the counties of Crawford, Dent, Iron, St. Francois and Washington. Counties served by Unit III are Dunklin, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Mississippi, Scott and Stoddard.

The geographic system is expected to increase interaction of the staff, provide greater continuity of care from admission through out-patient service, and create a healthy spirit of competition among the unit teams. It is also believed that social workers and other hospital professionals concerned with designated county areas will become more familiar with community agencies and resources which are utilized in rehabilitation and discharge planning.

Hospital areas not in the new geographical set-up include medical wards, geriatrics and the Alcohol Treatment Center.

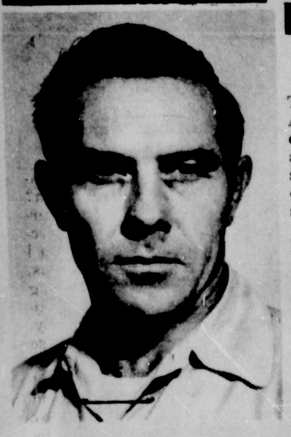
ARMED FORCES



U. S. AIR FORCES, Thailand -- U. S. Air Force Staff Sergeant Robert L. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie A Williams of Bloomfield, Mo., is on duty at Don Muang Royal Thai AFB, Thailand.

Sergeant Williams, an airframe maintenance technician, is assigned to a unit of the Pacific Air Forces. He previously served with the 100th Field Maintenance Squadron at Davis-Monthan AFB, Ariz.

The sergeant, a veteran of World War II and the Korean War, attended Dexter (Mo.) Public High School.

His wife, Edna, is the daughter of Mrs. Cora Whitney of Rt. 2, Grandfield, Okla.

(T22FR046201) -- USS ENTERPRISE (FHTNC) -- Seaman Dale W. Capps, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Capps of 1722 Oklahoma St., and husband of the former Miss Doris J. Dial of Route 4, all of Sikeston, Mo., has arrived in Portsmouth, Virginia aboard the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise.

The nuclear powered carrier came around Cape Horn in a 28 day voyage from Alameda, Calif. It is scheduled to enter a 10 month shipyard overhaul. Her nuclear cores will be replaced and other repairs made.

Enterprise has been based in California for the past four years and has made four combat cruises to the Tonkin Gulf, off the coast of Vietnam.

(T22FR046201) - USS ENTERPRISE (FHTNC) -- Navy Lieutenant John R. Limbaugh, son of Mrs. Lorene C. Limbaugh of 515 E. Gladys St., Sikeston, Mo., and husband of the former Miss Brenda Blocker of Oran, Mo., has arrived in Portsmouth, Virginia aboard the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise.

The nuclear powered carrier came around Cape Horn in a 28 day voyage from Alameda, Calif. It is scheduled to enter a 10 month shipyard overhaul. Her nuclear cores will be replaced and other repairs made.

Volpe Says Noise Factor Delays SST

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe says unresolved questions about sonic booms and domestic priorities have slowed a White House decision on further subsidies for a supersonic transport plane.

"Until I am satisfied and the President is satisfied about the noise factor and a few other situations, plus the cost in relation to some of the other domestic problems, I don't think you will see the President make a decision here," Volpe said.

The former Massachusetts governor was interviewed by Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., on the congressman's weekly radio broadcast.

Volpe's recommendation on financing further SST development has been on President Nixon's desk since spring.

The government already has spent $600 million for research and design study on the 1,800 mile-an-hour, 298-passenger plane. At least another $600 million in federal subsidies will be needed for the Boeing Corp. to build and test fly two prototype aircraft.

Boeing's 2,000-man SST team is subsisting on $6 million a month in unspent appropriations from 1967.

Volpe said the only reason a government subsidy "would be considered at all is the fact that America must remain in the leadership position, whether it is in airplane manufacturing or whether it is in shipbuilding or in any other area." This is important, he said, to America's balance of trade payments with the rest of the world.

Congress appropriated no new money for the trouble-plagued SST last year and President Nixon postponed recommending any money this year until the final design was approved. Boeing cleared the design hurdle last spring.

Congressional opponents of the project say the government should not further subsidize the aircraft industry. They contend the money could be better used for pressing domestic needs.

The critics also complain about the sonic boom that would be caused by supersonic flights.

Federal Aviation Administration officials say the boom problem is overrated and the SST would fly only at subsonic speeds over land.

Top-level Department of Transportation officials believe the single biggest barrier to further SST money is the President's concern that additional spending on the project might fuel inflation.

Boeing officials in Washington say the President must decide soon or the company will have to dismantle its SST team in December.

FuchsAppointed Key Dealer by State Group

N. E. Fuchs, a local Oldsmobile - Cadillac- GMC dealer, has been appointed a KEY DEALER for the Missouri Automobile Dealers Association to stimulate active participation in the association's statewide programs throughout Scott County. The appointment runs to May 31, 1970.

Mr. Fuchs was selected as a key dealer by the Board of Directors of the Missouri Automobile Dealers Association. The appointment was announced by Thomas E. Costello, President of MADA.

The Missouri Automobile Dealers Association represent 750 franchised new car and truck dealers throughout the state. The state organization is widely known for its programs of sponsorship of drivers' education, automobile safety, sales tax on the cash difference law-- where a used car is traded in; retail time sales act which safeguards the consumer in time sales transactions; and other public- interest programs; and most recently for its program supporting high standards and ethics of retail automobile merchandising, its Seal of Integrity program.

Timothy Seed Crop Shows Slight Increase

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) - Missouri, the nation's second biggest state in timothy seed production, is forecast to turn out a crop of 4,340,000 pounds this year, up 3 per cent from the 1968 total.

The increase in production is attributed to a 7 per cent increase in the number of acres harvested with production from 31,000 acres this year as against 29,000 last year.

Yield of the hay crop seed in Missouri is 140 pounds an acre in the forecast, down five pounds from last year.

Minnesota with more than twice as much acreage in timothy as Missouri has leads the nation with a forecast production of 13,680,000 pounds this year. The figures are from the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Largest Pyramid

The Pyramid of Giza erected by Cheops is the largest of Egypt's pyramids. According to Herodotus, 100,000 men were employed for 20 years in building it, while 10 years were occupied in transporting the stones.

Courtmartial Ordered for 2 Evans Officers

MANILA (AP) — The U.S. Navy today ordered a courtmartial for the commanding officer of the destroyer Frank E. Evans and the officer of the deck at the time the ship and the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne collided June 2.

Seventy four Americans were lost in the collision.

Vice Adm. W. F. Bringle, commander of the 7th Fleet, ordered the military trial for Cmdr. Albert S. McLemore, 37, of San Pedro, Calif., and Lt. (j.g.) Ronald C. Ramsey, 24, of Long Beach, Calif. It was expected to begin about Sept. 10 at Subic naval base.

No court martial was ordered for the junior officer of the watch at the time of the collision, Lt. (j.g.) James A. Hopson, 28, of Kansas City, Kan., but a Navy spokesman said Adm. Bringle would deal with him in a nonjudicial hearing.

The Australian navy already has cleared the Melbourne's skipper at a court-martial of negligence.

The Melbourne and the Evans collided during night maneuvers in the South China Sea. The destroyer was acting as part of the carrier's screen and was changing station from ahead of the Melbourne to astern of her. The carrier cut the destroyer in half, sinking the bow half.

McLemore and Ramsey were charged with negligence and dereliction of duty. Adm. Bringle said he based these "obviously very serious" charges on the investigation conducted at Subic in August into the collision.

Governments Can Combat Inflation

Dr. Kershner

FIRST, what can city governments do to combat inflation? They can operate honest, resourceful administrations, minimizing waste and maximizing efficiency. They can refuse to offer services which are not needed, to extend favoritism or to tolerate illegal strikes. They can reduce losses due to crime by means of prompt and adequate punishment of criminals. They can trim their relief rolls and provide employment in exchange for relief extended to able-bodied people. They can keep fringe benefits within a reasonable range and forbid unnecessarily early retirement.

Such suggestions will no doubt be highly unpopular. But in the long run the only way to remain free and to maintain decent living standards is to live within our income. In long-term perspective, there is no such thing as consuming more than we produce. In its extreme form, the attempt to have more than we produce can jeopardize our freedom, bring bankruptcy and chaos upon ourselves and make it possible for a dictator to seize power and enforce his will upon us.

What can state and federal governments do to combat inflation. They can follow the same principle as that recommended for cities—balance expenditures with receipts. A government receives a certain sum of money each year through tax revenues, and it should not extend its expenditures beyond this limit. The federal government should balance the budget and refrain from spending more than it collects each year. Presidents should offer realistic legislative proposals. Congressmen and Senators must limit their appropriations of money strictly to essentials. They should take care to study every bill in depth from a budgetary standpoint, and should be very reluctant to vote tax increases, knowing that they are expected to be custodians of public monies and defenders of the public interest.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Mary Jo's rescue possible; diver describes life-saving pocket; Burger plans overhaul of judicial system

WASHINGTON--The preliminary investigation into the drowning of Mary Jo Kopechne has raised an agonizing question that will haunt the Kennedy inquest this week. Could Mary Jo have been rescued from the bottom of Poucha Pond if Sen. Ted Kennedy had only rushed to the nearest house and banged on the door for help?

John Farrar, the diver who removed Mary Jo's body from the submerged car, has told authorities that "a large amount of air would have initially been trapped" inside the car. Had he been summonded immediately after the accident, Farrar declared, there was "a strong possibility that she would have been alive.

The navy-trained diving expert gave his electrifying testimony and backed it up with a detailed diagram at a pre-hearing interrogation on August 20. He was questioned by Lt. George Killen, who has been assigned by the Massachusetts State Police to assist District Attorney Edumdn Dinis with the Kennedy investigation.

Farrar described from his own measurements how the death car had hurtled off Dyke bridge for a distance of approximately 36 feet and then dropped eight feet, hitting the water at a 45-degree angle. The momentum flipped it over, he conjectured, "bringing the car to settle upside down in the water."

--Trapped Air?--

"On impact," he said, "the water would have gushed through the two right windows. However, due to the vertical settling of the car, a large amount of air would have initially been trapped underneath the floor of the car."

He pointed to his diagram, which showed "a possible water level based on lthe way the car entered the water and settled." In his sketch, the air pocket was large enough to have sustained life for a while. The position of Mary Jo's body suggested, in his opinion, that she may have been trying desperately to take advantage of the last air.

He found the body in the right rear seat. Emphasizing again that the car was botton up, he testified: "With respect to the seat, she was upside down. With respect of the water, she was right side up. Her head was cocked back, her face pressed into the foot well." This is where the air bubble likely would have formed.

"I found when I inspected the car underwater," he added, "that there was no air within the occupants' section of the car. However, by the statement of John Ahlbum and Joe Cerpa when the car was first moved by cable or by winch, numerous air bubbles escaped from the car while still underwater."

Farrar suggested that: "Ted Kennedy could have escaped from the driver's window as it was the only one rolled down and by the roll of the car would have been the last window submerged. His door was locked, which could have occurred, incidentally, during his egress since the locking device was the button on the edge of the window."

Once out of the water, Kennedy could have reached nearby Dyke house in a matter of seconds. The house was occupied by Mrs. Pierre Malm, who has stated that her lights were on at the time of the accident.

--Possibility of Rescue--

"Had I received a call within five to ten minutes of the accident occurring," declared Farrar," and was able, as I was the following morning, to be at the victim's side within 25 minutes of receiving the call, in such event there is a strong possibility that she would have been alive upon removal from this submerged car."

Summarizing, Farrar gave five reasons why he believed that Mary Jo Kipechne may have survived for several terrifying minutes, trapped in Kennedy's car at the bottom of Poucha Pond.

"Number one," said the diver, "the position of the car upon entering into the water, which I had deduced . . .,

"The position of the submerged car on the bottom of the water. That is number two.

"Number three, what I feel to be the consciously assumed position of the victim as distinguished from the prone position which, to me, was indicate of a person being consciously aware of the immediate situation in an attempt to save one's life by obtaining the last breath of air.

"Four, the fact that air bubbles emanated from the car upon removal by the wrecker two hours after I removed the victim from the submerged car. "And five, the fact that there was a large air void and lack of water in the car's trunk 10 hours after the accident was alleged to have occurred."

--Court Reforms--

It has now leaked out that Chief Justice Warren Burger, before his appointment, conferred with President Nixon on the urgent need for judicial reforms.

He told the President that court procedures needed to be drastically overhauled, that legal education should be brought up to date, that prisons needed a complete shake-up, and that the whole judicial system must be modernized. Burger would like to take the management of the courts out of the hands of the judges, for example, and put professional administrators in charge.

The president encouraged Burger to go ahead with his reforms. Result: the new Chief Justice, a Rock of Gibraltar conservative, is now planning the greatest liberalization of our courts since the dawn of the century.

Dentist Not Liable For Faulty Needle

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Barney had a tooth that was driving him to extraction. But being a coward, by the time he finally got to the dentist it became a major production to pull it out.

His whole mouth was tender and sore but it didn't compare to how sore Barney was when the dentist jabbed a needle into his jaw and the needle broke in two. If that wasn't enough, things became even more involved when Barney sued the dentist for the injury sustained. It seemed that while the needle had looked in fine fettle, its metal contained a hidden defect.

"So, what's he want from me?" queried the tooth driller in court. "I'm only a dentist. It's not my fault I got stuck with a bad needle."

"When a man resorts to a dangerous weapon like a hypodermic needle," retorted Barney, "it's up to him to make sure it's in safe working order. After all, a dentist isn't supposed to just run a filling station. He's supposed to be an expert with his equipment."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the dentist pay for Barney's agony?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The Judge held that when a tool breaks as the result of a hidden defect, and through no fault of the user, the user cannot be held responsible for the consequences. In this case, concluded the judge, Barney's injury was due to the hidden fault of the needle and not the dentist.

What We Think About It

By Lt. Colonel Norman E. May of Warwick, Bermuda

Reason 4. Russia.

Professor Wald states: "the thought that we're in competition with Russians and Chinese is all a mistake and trivial". Far from being a mistake and trivial". I consider our "competition" with Russia as the greatest concern of our lives and the cause for the greatest uneasiness. The Bolshevik party proclaimed in 1917 and have restated it many times since, even to this day, that they would win the world for International Communism, meaning their own bureaucratic dictatorship. I don't believe they have deviated one iota from this ambition and I, personally, fear they are too perilously close to realizing their goal. As evidence:

the seas are crowded with Russian naval and merchant ships and are aswarm with Russian submarines. (what purpose do the countless Russian "fishing " boats serve on the U.S. Atlantic and Pacific coasts?)

Russia has completely re-equipped Nasser with all modern materials of war and has moved a major portion of its naval strength to the Mediterranean.

the continuous and continuing supply of war materials to North Vietnam. How long could North Vietnam continue the war without Russian military hardware?

the invasion and subjugation of Czechoslovakia.

the initial and continuing support to Castro in Cuba and the operation and maintenance of guerrilla training schools in Cuba.

the infiltration and subversion of African and South American governments.

It is a reasonable assumption from the many "spy" cases that have been revealed since the war that the major governments of the western world have been and still are infiltrated by card-holding or fellow-traveller type Russian agents. Kim Philby's contact or boss has never been revealed and could well be a most respected civil servant high in the U.K. government.

It is a reasonable assumption that the higher echelons of the trades unions of Great Britain, and probably elsewhere, are still infiltrated by Russian sympathizers and agents. They are certainly being successful in wrecking the economy of the U.K.

It is a reasonable assumption that the international and national news services, even to top levels, are infiltrated by Russian sympathizers and agents. Scan almost any news report in newspaper, radio or T.V. and note the red influence or bias.

It is a reasonable assumption that the teaching professions of the West on the University, College, High School and even down to Grade School levels, have been infiltrated and too large a proportion of our teachers and professors fuzzily dream of a communist Utopia.

A headless hen that, for 12 hours after she was decapitated, walked around the corral like any other chicken has been worrying Ephraim Tucker, a local stationery merchant, residing at 408 Eureka Street according to a Redlands, (Cal.) dispatch to the New York Herald. The hen had been suffering several days from what is known as the gapes. She became so sickly that after a conference with his wife, Tucker decided to cut the hen's head off and end her misery. When he performed the operation the wound did not bleed. Instead of fluttering to the ground, the hen walked off a few feet and stood still, Tucker was puzzled. When he returned at 11 o'clock he went back to the corral with a lantern. The hen was still standing and in addition had laid an egg. Next morning the merchant went to the chicken yard once more. The headless hen had moved 20 feet, but was apparently as full of life as any of the other chickens. Tucker could stand it no longer. He seized the hen and with the hatchet cut off what was left of its neck. This time the hen fluttered and died.

TEN QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question 1. Would direct popular election lead to a splintering of the two-party system?

Answer. Whatever the historical reasons for the initial appearance of two parties on the American political scene, most political scientists are agreed that its continued existence is due mostly to the fact that in the United States political contests are decided in single-member districts. In other words, in an election there is but one prize to be won. The electoral mechanics of the single member district, in terms of its effect on the party system, are such that they tend to force factions to combine in order to be certain of capturing a popular vote plurality and victory. Since direct popular election would not affect the nature of the Presidency, and it would remain a single member office, there is little likelihood of direct election splintering the parties.

Conversely, the simplest way to splinter the parties would be to offer a share of power to factions in proportion to their relative strengths, Direct popular election, unlike other proposed reforms, would avoid the prospect of multiple parties by offering only one prize, thus maintaining the incentive to coalesce around the two major parties.

In addition, we have proposed in S.R. Jes. 1 a 40 percent plurality requirement as a further safeguard against a proliferation of the parties. The 40 percent requirement would encourage potential splinter groups to continue to operate within the framework of the two party system, since no minor party could reasonably hope to win 40 percent of the total popular vote. At present, it should be pointed out, third parties are encouraged to enter close Presidential contests in the hope of playing a balance of power role--as in 1948 and again in 1968. Under direct election, however, the splinter party's strength would be diluted by the fact that it would be measured against the nationwide popular vote totals of the major parties' candidates and thus would require a minimum of 20 percent of the popular vote--and in most instances somewhat more. In the unlikely event of a runoff, only the two top vote-getters participate. This would discourage minor parties from entering the contest, since it is highly improbable that they would be among the top two.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT YOUR PRESCRIPTION:
It's meant for you!
The human body is an efficient organism. It runs like clockwork with each vital part doing its job. When one of these parts breaks down or a foreign substance attacks, the body reacts to the blow in a way all its own. Chemicals in the diseased area begin immediately to repair the break. Often these are not enough and chemicals from other parts of the body are utilized. When this happens a chemical imbalance is caused. Your doctor examines you to determine the amount and type of chemicals involved. He may feel it necessary to add chemicals to your system in order to defeat the disease... this is a prescription. By his diagnosis he can determine which chemicals will do you the most good. Some systems are stronger or better equipped to handle disease. They require less medication. Others need more outside help. Each person is different. That is why you should never use another's prescription nor allow someone else to use yours.
For the highest pharmaceutical standards, low prices consistent with quality and the personal attention you can always depend upon, bring your prescriptions to

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Sept., 2 the 245th day of 1969. There are 120 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1666, the great fire of London began. Some 13,000 houseak were destroyed.

On this date:

In 1789, the U. S. Treasury Department was established. Alexander Hamilton was the first secretary.

In 1864, Union forces occupied Atlanta, Ga., during the Civil War.

In 1901, President Theodore Roosevelt made a speech that included his famous statement: 'Speak softly and carry a big stick; you will go far."

In 1940,50 U.S. destroyers were transferred to Britain in exchange for an American lease of military bases in Newfoundland and the British West Indies.

In 1957, Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus ordered National Guard troops and state police to prevent the entry of Negroes at Little Rock's Central High School.

In 1963, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace stopped school integration at Tuskegee High School by encircling the building with state troopers.

Ten years ago — United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold proposed private meetings of the U.N. Security Council to deal with troublesome world problems.

Five years ago — Malaysia charged that Indonesia had parachuted guerrillas into southern Malaysia.

One year ago— A new ruling group in Czechoslovakia empowered to do everything it could to speed the withdrawal of Soviet-block troops.

Profit Illusive in Hydroponic Tomatoes

COLUMBIA -- What kind of farming could bring an easier profit than hydroponic tomato production? All you have to do is give a plant the nutrients it actually needs and a small amount of space.

Sounds good, doesn't it? However, most growers who try to produce this way fail, says Vic Lambert, professor of horticulture at the University of Missouri. Lamberth says costs are high and management must be hair-fine to realize a profit.

Hydroponics, or soilless gardening, involves growing plants in water, sand, or gravel, usually in a greenhouse. A solution of nutrients in water is pumped through the medium, providing the plants with an adequate supply.

This method has been used for more than a century in studies of plant physiology and nutrition, Lambeth says. It is of particular use in studying the effects of a deficiency or surplus of elements, such as nitrogen. The relative amounts of different nutrients used at different times of plant development can also be studied.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

No. 69-35

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q- Is a graduate school fellowship taxable?

A- Income from a fellowship is usually tax exempt. If you are a candidate for a degree there is no limit on the amount of tax-free income you may receive from a fellowship or scholarship grant.

However, if you teach or perform other services in connection with the award, the portion of the award that represents payment for this work is generally taxable. This rule does not apply if all candidates for the degree, whether they have a fellowship or not, are also required to perform these services.

For additional information send a post card to your District Director for a free copy of Republication 507, "Tax Information On Scholarships and Fellowships."

Q- What are the benefits folks over 65 get when the sell their homes?

A- All or part profit made on such sales may be tax free when certain conditions are met. For example, the taxpayer must be 65 or over before the date of the sales and owned and used the home as his principal residence for five of the preceding eight years.

For more details on this provision of the law and to learn more about the tax benefits for those 65 or over, send a post card to your district office and ask for a free copy of Publication 554, "Tax Benefits For Older Americans."

Q- I read where I'll have to fill out an extra form next year to itemize my deductions instead of doing it on the back of the 1040. Is that right?

A-Yes, the place for itemized deductions has been moved from the back of Form 1040 to a separate schedule. The separate form is basically another way to organize the information required in a manner that benefits taxpayers by providing more space to list deductions.

Q- Can you still be audited even though a refund has come through O.K.?

A-Yes. IRS generally has three years from the time a return is filed to make an audit and assess additional taxes. For this reason it is advisable to keep tax records for ordinary income and expense items at least three years. Some records, however, should be retained longer. For example, those supporting costs of investments, etc.

It usually takes about 5-6 weeks to process a return calling for a refund. In that time it is only possible to make sure the return is complete, the arithmetic is accurate and that the taxpayer is not filing a duplicate refund claim or has an outstanding tax liability.

SOFTENED WATER OFFERS BETTER BEAUTY CARE

People who bathe in soft water claim they feel better. They're not imagining things. They really do, because their skin is free of the sticky soap and dirt film that occurs in hard water. The Water Conditioning Foundation points out that the deposit you see in a tub or lavatory bowl when hard water is used is what remains on the skin when it's washed in hard water.

Soft water is important for a good shampoo too. It leaves the hair more lustrous and full-bodied, with less tendency to tangle. When hard water is used, deposits on the hair can cause uneven results with home permanent waves, tinting, dyeing or bleaching, the Foundation notes.

Over 85 percent of the water in the U. S. is hard enough to require treatment. The best way is with an automatic softener that conditions the water before it enters the piping system. In the modern unit, the water flows through a tank containing a chemical that removes certain minerals such as iron and calcium. As the chemical is saturated with the minerals, it's regenerated automatically. The unit is easy to install and requires almost no maintenance.

A booklet full of information on how to put more comfort, convenience and beauty into the home is available for 50 cents. Write to the Foundation at 1780 Maple Street, Northfield, Ill. 60093. Ask for "Quality Water at the Tap."

PAUL FLOWER'S GREEN HOUSE

Ever an enthusiastic bandwagon jumper-on, I join the parade of literary illuminati to bite my thumb at a few popular but offensive words and phrases which seem to titillate the Madison Avenue blacksmiths who aspire to fabricate our opinions.

The American Heritage Dictionary, published jointly with Houghton Mifflin (in three formats, plain-edged $7.95, thumb-indexed $8.95 and deluxe $12.50), will contain a section on good and bad usage of the English language. This part inspired a panel discussion among recognized writers and critics on usage and following are a few examples and comments thereon:

ENTHUSE - Dwight Macdonald: "Let's hold the line on this one."

ERRATAS (as plural form) - Donald Davidson: "To think that we should have lived to see the day when such a question could be asked."

DESCALATE (for de-escalate) - Jacques Barzun: "I would desprecate it." Theodore M. Bernstein: "I freely confess that I am the one who committed infanticide against 'descalate' on the editorial page of The Times."

FINALIZE - Isaac Asimov: "This is nothing more than bureaucratic illiteracy . . . the last resort of the communicatively untalented." John Bainbridge: "To be used only facetiously, except by bureaucrats and generals."

GIFT (as a transitive verb) - Walter J. 'Red' Smith: "If he 'gifts' her wisely, she should 'host' him warmly, which could be immoral."

UNIQUE (as in "rather unique" or "more unique") - John Kieran: "A woman cannot be slightly pregnant."

WISE (suffix, as in "populationwise" or "taxwise") - Winthrop Sargeant: "A Madison Avenue locution which should be avoided by every civilized person."

MEDIA (as singular form, "medias" for plural) - Herbert Brucker: "Used only by modern sociologists who never had first year Latin."

REGIME (in sense of "administration") - Jacques Barzun: "No, and cut out 'dynasty' in the same contexts. These are technical terms, you blasted non-historians."

SENIOR CITIZEN - Berton Roueche: "I'd as soon use 'underprivileged' for 'poor, or any other social science Choctaw."

TOO (for "very") - Gilbert Highet: "My wife's mother used to ask me, 'I don't like soup too hot, do you?' She don't like soup too hot, do you?' She was surprised when I said, 'No one likes soup too hot.' "

GOOD (adverb for "well.") - Mario Pei: "We brew good, like we used to could. What's the use of having an adverb separate from the adjective, if you don't use it? Or do we want to ape German?"

Bravissimo for all these scholars who are wise enough to agree with me. It speaks well for them.

Now if we can scotch a few others, with or without the American Heritage Dictionary, the snail will be on the thorn and Pippa will have reason to welcome the morn. For oblivion I nominate "particular," as in "This particular circumstance," and the "tell it like it is" monstrousity; if we get rid of these, we shall have overcome. A bas forever on misuse of "shambles,' "epithet," "flaunt" (for "flout"), "fortunitous" (for "fortunate") and "from whence."

I'll go quietly now.

ATTORNEY GENERAL PRAISES PRESIDENT'S REVENUE SHARING

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. -- President Nixon's proposal for revenue sharing between the Federal Government and the state and local governments won the praise of Attorney Gen. John Danforth recently.

Danforth said he was convinced that local governments in large metropolitan areas need federal and state aid to solve problems "which are growing more colossal in their proportions."

"These problems are evident daily to those who live in large metropolitan areas -- The deterioration of housing, the pollution of air and the alarming increase in the rate of crime," Danforth said.

Danforth said he was most concerned about the problem of crime. "Twenty-six cities of more than one-half million population comprise less than 18 per cent of the total population of the United States, yet these same 26 cities are responsible for more than 34 per cent of all crimes against property and more than one-half of all crimes against persons," the Attorney General said.

The problem of reducing crime hinges on spending more money, Danforth said. "In five years between 1963 and 1968 the cost of providing for a Kansas City policeman rose from $8,300 to $12,200, or an increase of 46 per cent. During the same fire year period, the reported crime rate per officer has risen a factor of eight times faster than the size by which the force has been increase," he said.

Danforth said the revenue sharing program proposed by Mr. Nixon could help solve the problem of crime in the cities.

The Attorney General also praised Nixon for his welfare proposals, saying: "The problem is how to deal effectively with proverty in a nation of affluence. This problem must be solved, for the existence of poverty is doing more than affecting the lives of those who cannot provide for themselves.

"It is under-cutting the confidence of a younger generation of Americans in our system of government which requires their allegiance."

PARKER ATTACKS AUDIT SYSTEM

Rep. George W. Parker (R-Columbia) last week charged that audits of Department of Revenue fee offices were directed against persons in political disfavor in a Democrat factional fight.

"Instead of political adutis, Missouri annual audits of all tax funds," Parker said.

The fee office of Mrs. Shirley Butters of Bowling Green, Democratic national committeewoman, and one formerly operated by the wife of Sen. Robert A. Young (D-St. Ann) were specifically mentioned by Parker.

Young's wife lost her fee office after her husband refused to support an increase in the personal incomes tax last session.

Parker also criticized the lack of audits in enforcement of the state's intangible tax law. "Missouri's entire audit system is in dire need of modernization," he said.

"Lacking proper audits, no one knows how much tax money is being mishandled," Parker said.

HAS HIRING MANUAL

A manual listing sources through which Missouri employers can recruit and hire minority persons has been published by the Missouri Commission on Human Rights, a state agency which researches and implements programs helping minority groups.

Copies of the 38-page publication are being mailed to large employers, civil rights groups, local human relations commissions and other interested persons, according to Richard E. Risk, director.

The manual is seeking to have employers in the state use what the commission terms "affirmative action" in hiring members of minority groups. According to the report, "affirmative action" includes efforts by employers to:

"Include minority persons in all facets of the company's operations - from management to maintenance,

"Insure that company policy toward equal opportunity is not negative, and not neutral-but positive, and

"Increase company awareness of and interest in the whole of its community."

The bulk of the report consists of lists of organizations which can provide employers with minority members as prospective employees in various areas of the state.

The manual also contains several checklists which the commission says will help employers determine whether their personnel policies provide nondiscriminatory employment opportunities.

The manual was first published by the commission in 1968.

Car Topics

A FRIEND IN NEED

Girls, here's a little tip that may go a long way toward establishing you as someone special - really an individual - among your friends. Become a door jamb checker.

This hobby will tell you a lot about your friends (even more than the white glove test on window sills) and it may do them some good.

Here is how it goes: You are invited to a tea. When all the guests have arrived and are busily chatting away, you sneak outside, open car doors one by one and examine the lube stickers on door jambs.

Make a note of the mileage when each car was last serviced (what was done and when) and another note of the mileage on the odometer. Then put the license number adjacent to these vital statistics.

When you come back into the house, notes in hand, some of the guests will be looking at you askance. This is all right. They are curious. The stage is yours.

"Mildred," you say, "I notice that you are two months overdue for an oil change."

"Mildred," Millie's face will redden, and she probably will mumble something about only driving her car to and from the grocery lately.

Don't respond at this point. Instead, move on to license FL 4240. "Whose car is that...Pauline? You have had two oil changes and no filter."

"And Mary Ann, you've had only one lube job in nine

"I'm glad to see that at least you are functioning right on schedule, Betty."

The crowd begins to close in on you, but hold your position. Say, "I don't mean to be personal, girls, but you wouldn't neglect your automatic washers or your vacuums that way."

Go on to explain that the oil does more than lubricate engine parts. It cleans and cools, too. The filter gets all the dirt and contamination and eventually becomes clogged- full of sludge and goo.

"Further, " you admonish, "A lube job gives your serviceman a chance to check over your whole car while it is on the lift. I noticed you have a bad tire, Jane."

Your friends are speechless. So to avoid further embarrassment, you move on to the next party. Don't you feel good about this? You know what they say about a friend in need.

"PEST CONTROL"

The Office of Attorney General John C. Danforth, noting that this is a peak time of year for pest control activities, today offered advice for homeowners on extermination services.

Elderly persons living alone are particularly vulnerable to scare tactics used by some termite exterminators, Danforth's office noted. These operators have been known to warn elderly homeowners that their houses would be burned down to prevent the spread of termites if extermination services were not procurred immediately.

As a first step, homeowners who believe they have termites may contact their building contractor or city license inspectors, advised Christopher S. "Bond" of the Consumer Protection Division. These persons can, sometimes for a modest fee, advise whether the house is infested with pests and treatment is needed.

"The Consumer Protection Division has had numerous complaints caused by a small number of sharp operators who have the uncanny ability to find termites where there are none. Sometimes these termite experts carry their own termites in case they cannot find any on their 'free inspection' tours," Bond reported. "Other complaints reaching the Consumer Protection Division allege that the supposed exterminators use a harmless soap solution that is almost totally ineffective for killing termites.

"If you need pest control services, the second step is to make sure the firm which you choose is a reliable one. The Better Business Bureau or your local Chamber of Commerce can give you information on whether the firm you are considering is a reputable one."

Bond stated that there are many reputable pest control concerns in the state and they should not be confused with the unscrupulous few. "The legitimate firms not only perform an effective service, they are customarily much less expensive than the unscrupulous operators. This is a further reason why it is so important to know the firm with which you are dealing."

Four Killed in Weekend Accidents

Four were killed in Labor Day weekend accidents, three near Bell City Sunday night and a woman pedestrian Saturday afternoon.

The three killed in the single car accident Sunday at 9 p.m. on route Y, four miles southeast of Bell City were Lynn Wright, 57, and John D. Wright, 54, both of Bell City, and Harold Glenn Midkiff, 16, Vanduser.

Mrs. Mildred Snider, 49, Kennett, died of her injures after she walked into the path of a 1962 Oldsmobile, driven by Gary Paul Stafford, 18, Kennett.

The bodies of the Wrights, were taken to Shetley Funeral Home in Bell City.

The body of Midkiff was taken to the Nunnelee Funeral Home.

State patrolmen were unable to learn who was driving the 1965 Pontiac but they said the driver apparently lost control while speeding. The car went off the road and overturned throwing out its three occupants.

The accident occurred on a Kennett street Saturday at 2:20 p.m.

Mrs. Snider was transferred from Dunklin County Memorial hospital in Kennett to a Memphis hospital.

Three were injured in an accident Monday at 8 p.m.. on Interstate-55, four miles south of Scott City.

A tire blew out on a 1966 Pontiac, driven by Hazel Louise Fitts, 46, St. Louis. a passenger grabbed the steering wheel, causing the vehicle to go into a ditch.

Injured were Sarah King, 80, St. Louis, head cuts; Louise Williams, 34, St. Louis, neck and back injury; and Willia Mae Whitley, 31, also of St. Louis, arm cuts.

The three were taken to Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Mrs. Snider, 45, died Monday at 8 a.m. in Baptist Memorial hospital in Memphis.

She was born in Holland, Dec. 9, 1923.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Shirley Hensley, Benton; her mother, Mrs. Grace Barton, Bell City; one half-sister, Mrs. Lorene Hirsch, St. Louis; and two grandchildren.

Friends may call at Nunnelee Funeral Chapel until noon Wednesday.

Services will be Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. in Unity Baptist church in Benton.

Burial will be in the church cemetery .

Lynn Wright, 57, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reb Wright of Humphries county, Tennessee.

Born in Waverly county, Tenn., Feb. 29, 1912, he married Miss Mavis Crawford Feb. 4, 1933. She preceeded him in death, Mar. 31, 1963.

Two brothers, Peter Paul Wright and Goad Wright, both of Bay Village, Ark.; two sisters, Mrs. Louise Bowles, East Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Virginia McConnell, Louisville, Ky.; and nine grandchildren.

Wright was a farmer. Services will be at Shepley Funeral Chapel in Bell City at 2 p.m., Wednesday

The Rev. Van Johnson, pastor of the General Baptist Church will officiate.

Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery in Sikeston.

John Dee Wright, 54, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reb Wright of Humphries county, Tenn.

Born in Waverly county, Tenn., June 7, 1915, he married Violet Crawford, Sept. 25, 1937. She survives.

Also surviving, one son, John Wesley Wright, Florrisant; and two brothers, Peter Paul Wright and Goad Wright, both of Bay Village, Ark.; two sisters, Mrs. Louise Bowles, East Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Virginia McConnell, Louisville, and two grandchildren.

He was a farmer, and owned and operated a recreation center in Bell City.

Services will be in the Shepley Funeral Chapel, Bell City, Wednesday at 2 p.m.

The Rev. Van Johnson, pastor of the General Baptist Church, Puxico, will officiate.

Burial will be in Memorial Park cemtery in Sikeston.

Midkiff, 16, died Sunday at 9:30 p.m.

He was born in Morehouse, Aug. 8, 1953.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Bonnie Midkiff, Vanduser; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Midkiff, Vanduser; five brothers, Ricky, Chad, David, Scott and Bradley Midkiff and one sister, Cheryl Ann Midkiff.

Services will be at 1 p.m. Wednesday in the Nunnelee Funeral Chapel with the Rev. A. C. Sullivan, Morehouse, officiating.

Burial will be in Stanfield cemetery in Clarkton.

Three Wounded by Shotgun, Man Held

CHARLESTON - Elmer Jackson, 66, and Aubrey Griffin, 48, are in the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston, in critical condition from gunshot wounds sustained Monday afternoon. Mrs. Griffen received minor wounds in the gunplay.

According to Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons, ill feelings between Lyman Estes, 55, and the Jackson and Griffen families led to the two shootings.

Estes was apprehended near Burfordville in Cape Girardeau county and placed in the New Madrid county jail.

The sheriff's office charged that Estes Monday went to two homes, where the shootings took place. A 12 gauge single barrel shotbun was the weapon.

The first shooting took place at 5:30 p.m. in front of the Elmer Szeva home, one and one-half miles east of the old Bridges school. There Jackson was shot.

Authorities charged that Estes then drove one and a half miles east, where he shot Mr. and Mrs. Griffin.

Sheriff Simmons said charges against Estes would be filed pending further investigation.

Mobile Home Area Will Be Developed

A 100-acre mobile home subdivision between the Moore Company and Presley Travel Trailer Sales near Interstate 55 is in preliminay stages of development.

R. D. Clayton, real estate developer, announced this morning he has sold 144 acres to MaCalco, Inc., Springfield for the subdivision. Fourty-four acres are intended for commercial purposes. A 10-acre recreational park will be a part of the sub-division.

Clayton, who sold the land, said that lots and mobile homes will be sold to persons desiring to live there.

Clayton said the transaction was made after Orville McDowell, president of Future Security Life Insurance Company, Springfield, a company owned by MaCalco, selected the location. McDowell is a newphew of J. C. McDowell, who formerly was judge of the Scott, Mississippi and Cape County circuits court.

Clayton said there also will be land available for rental purposes.

A survey of the land, which runs about one mile north along I-55, has been completed. Dean Saxton, Springfield, will be the developer for MaCalco.

This is a first of its type in the mid-west," Clayton said. "McDowell said the site and readily determined the need of such a facility for the Sikeston and New Madrid areas."

SOMETHING PLEASANT can be found in most everything-- even the wate stands on Sikeston's streets after a rain. Childr splash around at the intersection o. Scott and Center streets.

Burglary Attempt Fails, Three Nabbed

MATTHEWS -- An attempted burglary at 2 a.m. today of the Waltrip Grocery store by three teenagers resulted in their capture.

A neighbor, Lois Andrews, heard noise in the store and notified City Marshal Pete Burch and Deputy Marshal Loy Yancey.

The officers apprehended two of the youths in the store and a third in a car near the store.

The youths had gathered up more than 30 cartons of meats, cigarettes, toothpaste and razor blades. They were about to leave the building when the officers entered.

Apprehended were Howard L. Moran, 19, Fulton, Ky.; a 15-year-old juvenile from South Fulton, Tenn., who was in the store with Moran, and a 16-year-old juvenile, also of South Fulton, waiting in the car.

A search disclosed a 25 caliber automatic pistol in the shirt of Moran.

The three youths did not resist. They were taken to the New Madrid county jail in New Madrid.

$3,000 Theft At Hayti

HAYTI - The Barkowitz Clothing store was robbed of $3,000 between Sunday night and Monday morning. Entrance was gained through the roof.

The money came from a safe, which was broken into and emptied.

Also taken were between 700 store stock certificates.

The thieves attempted to break in the back door but failed.

Thieves Lift Cash Register From Station

Clarense Cecil, 504 Daniel, an attendant at the Southside Service Station, South Kingshighway, reported to police at 1:27 a.m. today that a cash register was stolen from the station containing $140.

Cecil told police the register was taken while he was in an adjoining cafe. He said the theft occurred at 1:10 a.m.

Police also reported this morning that a 1968 Chevrolet belonging to Albert I. Kappler, 735 East Kathleen, was damaged by an unidentified driver at 3 a.m. Monday.

The car was parked in front of the home when damaged. No estimate was given.

Thieves Seize Compressor

PORTAGEVILLE — An air compressor valued at $450 was stolen Sunday night from the River Grain Company on the Mississippi River upper landing near here.

The theft was discovered Monday and reported to the state patrol.

Hearnes Releases Formal Special Session Guidelines

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes today released his formal proclamation calling the General Assembly into special session next Monday for the primary purpose of boosting corporate and individual income tax rates to bring in an additional $65 million a year in revenue.

The proclamation was dated Aug. 30, but was being mailed out to members of the Legislature today.

It called for the convening of the two houses in special session at 5 p.m. Sept. 8 and said:

"I do hereby state that the action of that body is deemed necessary concerning each matter specifically stated and especially designated hereinafter as follows:

"1.Individual and corporate income tax measures for the sole purpose of increasing the general revenue funds of the State of Missouri.

"2.An increase in the interest rate and sale price permitted by law on the bonds of municipalities and other subdivisions and districts of the state.

"3. Suppelemental appropriations for the period ending June 30, 1970, for the funding of enactments of the 75th General Assembly.

"4.Such additional and other matters as may be recommended by the governor by special message to the general assembly after it shall have been convened."

The final paragraph left open the call so Hearnes could add other topics later if they became necessary in his consideration.

Hearnes decided last Friday to call the special session after the Senate Majority Leader, Sen. A. Basey VanLandingham, DColumbia, assured him a canvass showed a minimum of 18 Senators committed to vote for the income tax increase bill.

Four Charged with Driving Offense

Four were charged with careless driving during the holiday weekend, police reported this morning.

Charged are Gretta K. Davis, 841 Mary, R. A. Manker, 218 Edwards, J. R. Scarbrough, 320 Kramer, and Little John Lett, route three, Sikeston.

Three were charged with public intoxication. They are R. W. Waldrop, 309 Pam, Leroy Holmes, 204 Fuchs, and James Wren Jr., 237 Watson. Holmes also is charged with disturbing the peace.

Dorothy Long, Benton, is charged with shoplifting.

Ernie Adams, 512 Smith, is charged with assault.

Council Adopts Health Planning

MALDEN — It was decided by more than 30 individuals, representing health - oriented organizations and governmental agencies, at a meeting at the Bootheel Economic Development Council to adopt comprehensive health planning for the six- county area.

The department of health, education and welfare has been encouraging the available planning in multi- county regions to make improved health services available on a coordinated basis. The planning is a means of coordinating activities of all elements involved in personal and environmental health services.

A health council will be created and will be composed of representatives from the health profession, along with other citizens interested in the health care needs. The council will have the responsibility of developing the health objectives, priorities, and strategies for meeting health needs of residents. It will review federally financed health projects and recommend that proposals for federal grants be accepted or rejected.

At the meeting, the Rev. Fr. Wally Ellinger of the Immaculate Conception Church in New Madrid was elected Chairman, nd Jack Tipton, administrator of the Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital, Hayti was elected vice chairman of a steering committee that will assist in the creation of the council.

Any individual, organization or agency who desires representation on the council, should notify either Father Ellinger, Tipton, or Philip Shelton at the Bootheel Economic Development Council office before Sept. 15.

Farm Water Pump Stolen

DIEHLSTADT — An electric water pump was stolen Monday night belonging to Harry Warren Sr., who lives near Diehlstadt, Scott County Sheriff John Dennis reported.

Dennis said the pump, valued at $140, was used to water livestock. The pump pipe was broken off in the ground.

Nixon Defends Plan To Reform Welfare

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — President Nixon has told the nation's governors not to look for an outpouring of new federal funds as a byproduct of peace in Vietnam.

The President also defended his welfare reform program in a speech to the 61th National Governors Conference Monday and advised the state executives against trying to tamper with it.

But the conference was to act today on a resolution urging that the federal government take over the financing of the entire welfare system.

"He said he was going to put the money where the problems are," said New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, chief promoter of the takeover proposal, a five year plan which goes far beyond the Nixon recommendations.

Nixon flew from his summer White House in San Clemente, Calif., for his defense of his domestic programs, and told his critics:

"I make just one suggestion —we've been on a road for a long time that is leading us to disaster and when you're on the wrong road you get off and get on a new road."

Nixon told the governors at their black tie conference ball there are "hard budget and tax decisions ahead."

"Dreams of unlimited billions of dollars being released once the war in Vietnam ends are just that—dreams," he said. "True, there will be additional money—but the claims on it already are enormous.

"There should be no illusion that what some call the peace and growth dividend will automatically solve our national problems or release us from the need to establish priorities.

"In order to find the money for new programs," said Nixon, "we will have to trim it out of old ones."

Said Democratic Gov. John N. Dempsey of Connecticut: "I'm not so sure that if the war ended tomorrow there couldn't be billions of dollars. There must be. Frankly, I was disappointed in the speech. I had hoped to hear a speech of a constructive nature."

One of Nixon's chief advisers, Arthur Burns, counsellor to the President, said Monday "of course there will" de more money available after the war. Burns said if the conflict ended immediately it would free $8 billion in federal funds during the next 18 months. But he did not say whether prior claims already had committed such funds.

Manhunt Nabs Two Burglary Suspects

MEXICO, Mo. (AP)—Two of three burglary suspects were captured after an extensive manhunt Monday. The third is still at large.

Participating in the search was the Highway Patrol, sheriff's officers from Audrain and Boone Acounty, and police from Mexico and Fulton.

The search started after two men and a woman were found in the rural home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McGuire on Route E west of Mexico.

When the McGuires and their daughter returned from a visit to a neighbor, a scuffle and gun battle broke out and the three intruders fled. No one apparently was injured.

The manhunt, aided by the patrol's helicopter, resulted in the capture of Carol Ann Miller, 21, and Robert Enzor, both of Kansas City.

McGuire told police his home had been burglarized previously. His wife said she believed the three were awaiting their return in order to force the family to open a safe.

No Driver License, Bell Citian Fined

Joe Ray Jr., Bell City, was fined $25 and sentenced to 60 days in jail this morning in magistrate court for failure to have a driver's license. Ray told Judge M. E. Montgomery he had never had a license and had never made an effort to obtain one.

The jail term will be suspended if Ray pays the fine and court costs.

Sylvester Ray, Bell City, was fined $10 for allowing an unlicensed driver to operate his car.

The judge suspended the remainder of a 60-day jail sentence for Allen Carmack, route four, Sikeston, who was sentenced last week for exposing himself in public. Carmack also has a $25 fine pending on the charge, which will have to be paid, according to James E. Moore III, assistant Scott County prosecuting attorney.

Judge Montgomery reduced bond from $10,000 to $5000 for Leonard Jackson, 31, 214 Felker, who is charged with first degree murder of Willie Motton, Sikeston. Motton was shot Aug. 23, three times in Sunset with a .38 caliber pistol. Jackson is scheduled for a preliminary hearing Sept. 16.

James Robertson, 230 Felker, and Arthur Jackson, 160 Westgate, both appeared in court without attorneys. They are charged with felonious theft. Judge Montgomery appointed James Sirkal as counsel for Jackson. Robertson told the court he could obtain a lawyer, but had not been able to make a telephone call. Moore told Robertson: "You gotta ask," to make a phone call, "because the sheriff can't lead you around all over the place." Both cases were continued until next week.

Judge Montgomery appointed Fielding Pot[illegible]hnick as counsel for Jerry Harris, Chicago, Ill., who is charged with felonious assault. John Bobbie Harris, 227 Young, who is charged with the same offense, told the court he has not made a phone call for a lawyer since being in jail. Sheriff John Dennis said he has not made a request. They are charged with firing 12 gauge shotguns into a crowd of people in Sunset on Aug. 1.

Frederick Otto, route one, Benton, appeared in court on a felonious theft charge of stealing a car. Otto said he is unable to hire an attorney. "You need one," Judge Montgomery said, "for you are right in the middle of some serious trouble." Charles Matthews was appointed counsel for Otto. Otto is charged with stealing a 1956 Chevrolet last week from Jerry Rueter, Morehouse.

A felonious theft charge against Wendell McDonald, 349 School, was continued until Sept. 16. He is charged with stealing some tools at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Gladys Harbison, Neptune, N. J., failed to appear in court to face a careless driving charge. A $100 bond was forfeited and a warrant was issued.

Charges of speeding and resisting arrest against Raymond Orr, Morehouse, was dismissed.

Charles Hampton, Sikeston, was fined $10 for failure to have a driver's license.

Gary Finley, Charleston, and Stephen Lufey, Kennett, were fined $14 and $20 respectively on speeding charges.

J. D. Cross, 302 Heath, was fined $10 for failure to have a driver's license.

Pilots Threaten Strike If Syria Detains Israelis

Two Israeli men who were aboard a hijacked American airliner remained in Syrian custody today, and the international airline pilots' organization threatened a 24-hour strike if they are not freed by next Monday.

The plane's four other Israeli passengers, three women and a teen-age girl, returned to Tel Aviv Monday after 64 hours in Damascus. Ninety-five passengers of other nationalities and the airliner's crew of 12 were released Saturday.

A man and a woman from the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a guerrilla organization, diverted the Trans World Airlines Boeing 707 jet to Damascus Friday after it left Rome for Tel Aviv.

The executive committee of the 46,000-member International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations met in Paris Monday and drafted a statement calling on the United Nations to take immediate action to free the passengers and ensure the hijackers would be punished.

Ole Forsberg, Finnish president of the organization, said he had cabled the membership asking for a strike authorization, and he expected overwhelming approval.

"If the passengers are not freed before Sept. 8, we will go on strike" 15 days later, he said.

In Cairo, meanwhile, leaders of the four countries directly involved in hostilities with Israel began meeting to coordinate military and other policies.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad said after a three-hour meeting Monday Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, Jordan's King Hussein, Syrian President Nureddin al-Atassi and Iraqi Deputy Premier Saleh Jaidi Ammash, "agreed on the necessity of mobilizing all Arab efforts to face Israeli aggression."

Canoeists Complete Cleanup

EMINENCE, Mo. (AP)—More than 100 canoe enthusiasts from five states finished a three-day cleanup of a stretch of the Current River in southern Missouri Monday.

They gathered 283 burlap sack of trash, mainly beer cans, soft drink cans and bottles. There also were such things as tires, bedsprings, a lawnmower, a washing machine, sheet metal, a wheel barrow and a sewing machine.

The volunteers covered 26 miles from the Cedar Grove access point to Round Spring.

About 50 canoes took part in this 10th annual cleanup sponsored by the Ozark Wilderness Waterways Club, which is primarily based in Kansas City. Persons from St. Louis, Memphis, Tenn., Arkansas, Tulsa, Okla., Topeka and Lawrence, Kan., joined in the campaign.

Keith Couch, Overland Park, Kan., president of the club, said the trash collection was not as big as in other years, probably because the Natioal Park Service started about a year ago making periodic cleanups.

Traffic Toll Takes 583 Lives

Traffic accidents across the nation claimed 583 lives during the three-day Labor Day weekend.

Although late reports were expected to raise the toll higher, it appeared the final figure would fall short of the Labor Day record of 688, set during last year's observance.

For comparison purposes, The Associated Press made a survey of traffic deaths over a threeday nonholiday weekend earlier this summer. The total was 435.

The National Safety Council had estimated in advance that highway deaths over this summer's last long holiday weekend would total 625 to 725. The weekend began 6 p.m., local time, Friday and ended at midnight Monday.

Three Fined for Disturbance At Restaurant

PORTAGEVILLE - Police were called to the Hickory Villege restaurant Saturday night at 3:30 a.m., where a group of young men were accused of being unruly and using foul language.

They were arrested and brought before Police Judge, Ernie Fisher, before being released.

They were; Moe Kellums, 20, of Portageville, charged with peace disturbance, fined $25.; Perry Gouch, of Portageville, peace disturbance, fined $25.; and, Jimmy Blanchard, 20, of Portageville, peace disturbance, fined $25.

Others fined Saturday night were; Willie Brown, 20 of Alabama, public drunkness, fined $15; Joseph Davis, 21, of Marston, public drunkness, fined $15.; Miss Cora Petty of Portageville, drunk and disorderly conduct and peace disturbance, fined $25.; and Mike Totty of Portageville, peace disturbance, fined $25.

Columnist Drew Pearson Has Fatal Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Columnist Drew Pearson, whose reports on skeletons in government closets put him in the center of numerous controversies, is dead at the age of 71.

He suffered a heart attack Monday at his Maryland farm and was dead on arrival at Georgetown Hospital.

For almost four decades Pearson wrote "The Washington Merry-Go-Round," which carried his version of behind-the-scenes government action. He often raised the ire of officials, and two presidents called him a liar.

Jack Anderson, co-author the past 10 years, said he will continue the column which is carried in 625 daily and weekly newspapers including the Daily Standard.

Pearson's most recent major crusade in 1966-67 led to a Senate censur of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., after allegations he had used political funds for personal purposes.

It was President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman who denounced Pearson. Roosevelt called him a liar when the columnist reported Secretary of State Cordell Hull wanted to see Russia "bled white" during World War II.

Truman once referred to Pearson as an "s.o.b." after several columns which angered the President.

And the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis., resorted to physical violence during a long feud with Pearson in the 1950s. McCarthy admitted hitting Pearson with his hand at a fashionable club in Washington; the columnist said the senator kicked him in the groin.

The squabble got into the courts in a $5.1 million damage suit brought by Pearson against McCarthy and several others, including the late columnist Westbrook Pegler. It was dropped later.

This was only one of a number of court suits in which Pearson was plaintiff or defendant.

Although controversial, Pearson was affable and mannered and a Quaker. He sponsored the Friendship Train that collected 700 carloads of food for France and Italy after World War II.

Born Andrew Russell Pearson at Evanston, Ill., he was the son of a college professor who later was governor of the Virgin Islands. He was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Swarthmore College in Pennsylvania.

While working for the Baltimore Sun, Pearson and Robert S. Allen wrote a book called "The Washington Merry-go-Round" which promised to tell "the gossip which the Capital loves to whisper but hates to see in print."

The book and a sequel launched the column which Allen gave up in 1942 to re-enter the Army.

He once said of himself, writing in the third person: "Does he or his independence he is either loved or hated: there is no middle ground."

To many of his readers he was a "man in the know" who was not afraid to print anything. To some government officials he was a busybody, often incorrect.

His "Merry-Go-Round" book came out in 1931, and Pearson was on his way to national sometimes world-wide prominence.

He was the first to report President Roosevelt's plan to put additional justice on a Supreme Court that had thrown out several New Deal programs.

During World War II, Pearson reported that Secretary of State Cordell Hull wanted to see Russia "bled white." Hull denied this and Roosevelt backed him up, saying Pearson was a chronic liar.

President Truman said, after Pearson had been critical of one of his aides, that "any S.O.B. who thinks he can cause any of my people to be discharged by me, by some smart-aleck statement over the air or in the paper, he has got another think coming."

Pearson married Luvie Meyer, daughter of Eleanor "Cissy" Patterson, publisher of the Washington Times-Herald, ended in divorce.

In 1926 he married Tanis Moore, who survives along with a daughter, Ellen Arnold, and a stepson, Tyler Abell, former U.S. chief of protocol.

A memorial service will be at 11 a.m. EDT Thursday in the Washington National Cathedral. After cremation the ashes will be taken to the Pearson farm.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
SIDEWALKS ALIVE AGAIN WITH CHILDREN

All summer long - and, looking back, it now seems a rather brief time - the children were scattered around the landscape. Between the park, playground and pool, away at camp or on family vacation trips, or just in idle backyard games, theiers was a dispersed presence. As always now in early September, then, it is with a little start that we see them clustering by the dozens on the streets and sidewalks leading to the school buildings.

These are mornings for a return to the household discipline of early, orderly hours and dress. The formal learning process resumes and the children go back to school for the daytime hours. For most it is back to the same friends and building, moving up one grade this fall. For many, however, it is a whole new world: The kindergartener, curiosity overcoming fear in this first adventure away from the familiar security of home; for the new high school student, budding into maturity as he moves up to a larger, more complex community.

To the motorist, this annual procession back to the neighbor schoolyard brings a twinge of reminder. That special sign, often a brilliant orange color, "School zone, 20 miles an hour," has resumed the meaning it lacked these last three months. It is more a warning to slow down and be alert. At the school sites, solemn, sternfaced young safety patrolmen guard the crossings. But it is along the routes to and from school that playfulness or thoughtlessness can bring a sudden dart into the street.

The responsible driver along these streets these mornings and afternoons is prepared for the unexpected, whether passing a knot of frolic - some youngsters on the sidewalk or a covey of weaving bicycles. Slow, very slow, and pay close attention, those are the watchwords. To kill a child - unthinkable.

An evaluatio of competition should provide the retailer with a basis for determining the kind and amount of advertising he needs.

Unfortunately, many retailers tend to see competition only in terms of similar stores in the local community. Actually, the most serious competition may come from entirely different types of retail outlets, some of them at distant locations.

For instance, a lumber company which specializes in selling supplies for renovating homes may not appear to have a strong local competitor. The situation could cause the lunber company to curtail advertising with disastrous results.

Home renovation is an optional activity in most instances. It is undertaken only when it promises to bring satisfactions superior to other goods and services in which family savings could be invested.

Thus, in a real sense, the lumber company is in direct competition with the automobile dealer, the real estate agent, the distant vacation resort, the stock broker, and other dispensers of expensive goods and services. All are attempting to attract business from the same financial reserve.

The family which chooses a new car or an expensive vacation in preference to home renovation has chosen what appears to be a more satifying alternative. Indeed, the purchase of a new home may appear to be a more beneficial expenditure than renovation.

Of course, when a major buying decision is made, it is not always the best one. When local advertising is unbalanced in favor of one type of consumer benefit, buying decisions are made on the basis of incomplete information. Regardless of merit, the poorly advertised choice will not get due consideration.

TO REACH THE UNREACHABLE STAR

The accusation is often made, especially by the younger generation, that America is a nation of hypocrites. We proclaim a lot of noble ideals in our Declaration of Independence and Constitution but we fail to live up to them.

Adolf A. Berle, professor emeritus of law at Columbia University, recently made a reply to that charge which bears repeating, even though he is well past 30 and is a senior member of the Establishment.

Addressing a gathering of school superintendents in New York, the former assistant secretary of state, ambassador and government consultant agreed with the accusation of national shortcomings.

"A good teacher, far from denying this, would at once admit its truth," said Berle. "But he would add something surprising.

"He would say that no society would be worth the price of admission if it did not proclaim ideals which were beyond its present realization. For that matter, no man ever lived up to his ideals either.

"If ever American society fulfills all its ideals, it would be because the ideals were outrageously low. Seeking goals beyond your reach is essential -- in fact, it is the first principle of government."

History, said Berle, is the record of the painful attempts by society to seek levels beyond its immediate reach and, if ever it has realized them, to seek still higher goals.

Another way of putting it might be to paraphrase the words of the poet: A nation's reach should exceed its grasp -- or what's a younger generation for?

Too many youthful reformers, however, blessed with instant wisdom, appear ready to throw out the baby with the bath water and the teachers along with their teachings.

Their reach, regrettable, exceeds their grasp of history or of human nature.

Schools have opened in Missouri. With this in mind, Colonel E.I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, today called upon parents and drivers to do their part to protect youngsters from being involved in a traffic accident.

"Thousands of children are returning to the classrooms in Missouri," Hockaday noted. "They will be walking and riding to school in a carefree mood. Parents should instruct their youngsters on the rules of safe walking and drivers should be especially alert near schools."

The Patrol Superintendent stated that parents should understand traffic regulations and control measures and make sure their children also understand them. Parents, as pedestrians, should always set a good example for children. This includes both ways before crossing a street. Parents should also instill in their children the attitude that safety rules must be given the same respect and obedience as other rules of conduct learned at home and in school.

"Motorists must do their part to protect youngsters from death or injury in traffic", the Colonel continued. "They should be especially alert in school areas for signs, signals, traffic police, school patrols and for children themselves. Drivers must keep in mind that children are unpredictable and that they must think for these young pedestrians."

Colonel Hockaday urged parents and drivers to accept their responsibility in the protection of school children. He noted that children are our stock in the future and everything possible must be done to insure their safety in traffic.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Sen. Ted Kennedy's nightmare of July 18/19 – when he drove Mary Jo Kopechne off Dyke Bridge to her death in the black waters below– will be revived tomorrow (Wednesday) at the long-awaited inquest.

Thus far, the participants in the festivities before the tragedy, all Kennedy loyalists, haven't cooperated with District Attorney Edmund Dinis, whose preliminary investigation has raised as many questions as it has answered.

For instance, Deputy Sheriff Christopher S. Look, Jr., who was driving on Chappaquiddick Island the midnight of the accident, has now positively identified the death car as the one he saw heading down Dyke Road at 12:40 in the morning.

"And you are reasonably certain, Mr. Look," asked Dinis's chief investigator, Lt. George Killen, "that the car you saw being pulled out of the water on the morning of Saturday the 19th, that it was the same car that you saw at the intersection of Dyke Road and Chappaquiddick Road at approximately 12:40 - 12:45 a.m. on that same day?"

"Yes sir," said look emphatically.

This was more than an hour after Sen. Kennedy said the accident had occurred.

Look said he had approached the car, thinking the driver might be lost.

"I noticed a man driving and a woman on the other side and either an object or another person in the back seat," he testified. The latter could have been "some clothing or a hat or a pocketbook on the back ledge," he said.

Before he could reach the car, he said, it "drove off down Dyke Road."

OFFERED THREE A LIFT

He continued on his way home and encountered a man and two women strolling near the Chappaquiddick fire station.

"They were acting very happily and unconcerned," recalled Look, "so I stopped and asked them if they would like to have a lift. The girl-- the tall girl in the back closest to me – said, 'shove off, Bud.' I am not sure whether she said either, 'I am not a pickup' or just 'shove off, buddy.'

"The man was very polite and said, 'Thank you, sir, but we are only going to this cottage house." He pointed to the cottage where the Kennedy party had been holding a cookout. This tends to confirm my original report that the people at the cookout had started to drift off in pairs for a midnight swim. Kennedy invited Mary Jo for a swim, say insiders, about 11:30 P.M.

John Farrar, the first diver to reach Mary Jo's body inside the submerged car, told Dinis's investigators there was a "strong possibility that she could have been rescued if the Senator had reported the accident at once.

Farrar concluded from his underwater examination that an air bubble had formed inside the car and that Mary Jo had survived for several terrifying minutes, trapped in the sunken black Oldsmobile.

Kennedy spent the night, according to my sources, trying to establish an alibi for himself. He left the Island and made a point of being seen by his innkeeper on the mainland at 2:25 a.m. His original idea was to let his cousin, Joe Gargan, take the rap for him. Kennedy changed his mind, however, after crossing back to the Island on the ferry and learning that the accident had been discovered. He decided in the end that he would have to face the consequences for his own actions.

Ferry operator Richard Hewitt told Dinis's investigators that he had delivered Kennedy and two men on the island. They were still at the landing when he returned after another quick crossing. In the meantime, he had learned of the accident.

"Apparently they were waiting for someone to pick them up, and I thought they weren't aware of the accident," reported Hewitt. "So I went over and asked them if they were aware of it. One of the fellows, I believe it was the big fellow, (Paul) Markham, he told me, he said yes, he just heard about it."

SENATOR WALKED AWAY

"Was Senator Kennedy standing with Markham and this other fellow at the time that you told them?" asked Killen.

"As I approached," replied the ferry operator, "Senator Kennedy left the other two men and walked away behind a couple of cars."

The Senator reboarded the ferry and returned to the mainland where he reported to the Edgartown Police Station. Chief Dominick Arena was at the accident scene in swimming trunks when he learned of Kennedy's arrival. The station put Kennedy on the phone, and Chief Arena, ironically, took the call at nearby Dyke House -- the same house that the Senator bypassed after the accident.

"I told the Senator," testified Arena, "that I felt bad, that I was sorry that I had to make this call but it seemed as though there was a tragedy involving his car, and he said he knew.

"I asked him if anybody else was in the car, do you think they are in the water? He said, 'I would like to talk to you.' I said, 'Where would you like to talk to me, over at my office?' He said, I would like to see you over there.'...

"When I reached the station, I met the Senator, and he was there with Paul Markham in my office. They had been using the office phone, and when I got there, I said, 'I am sorry.' Almost the first remark the Senator made was, 'I was driving the car.' "

"How was the Senator dressed at the time he appeared at the station?" asked Killen.

"He had a white sport shirt on, short sleeves and a pair of blue slacks, and he looked neat. He looked physically okay, but he was very depressed and acted very depressed, acted very downtrodden."

For a week after the Chappaquiddick incident, say intimates, he brooded about it and wouldn't discuss the details with his most intimate advisers. They had to depend upon Gargan and Markham for an account of what had happened.

The Senator wept bitterly when he learned that his paralyzied father had been told about the accident and was upset. On another occasion, he couldn't contain his emotions, and the tears flowed again.

The old Kennedy buoyancy still hasn't returned. The signs of strain show on his face. He avoids looking people in the eye. He is a tragically sad figure as he resumes his ordeal this week at the inquest.

Doctor: "Have you been living a normal life?"

Patient: "Yes I have."

Doctor: "WEll you'll have to cut it out for awhile."

A GOOD QUESTION

Now that Christmas is over, there are the usual laments about how commercial it has become. The noted author and columnist, Mrs. Peg Bracken, who is perhaps best known for her book "I Hate to Cook," offered a timely thought on the commercialism of Christmas just before the holidays. She said, "Of course Christmas is commercially colored as what holiday isn't? Few of us grow our own Easter lilies anymore, or our own Halloween pumpkins. But why has 'commercial' become a dirty word? This country is commercial, among many other things. It was our talented commercialism on top of our talented mass production that enabled us to spread things around so more of us have decent comforts. And the fact that a few of us have such lavish ones that they border on the indecent doesn't alter the basic fact."

Christmas is as good an occasion as any for a little straight economic thinking.

HOT NEWS FOR MOM

The teacher had arranged that her pupils should exchange letters with pupils of a similar age in school in Holland. One day Dave received a letter from his new friend in the Netherlands and rushed home to tell his mother.

"Hey, Mom," he called. "I got a girl in Dutch!"

H.L. Hunt Says

U.S. POLICY TOWARD EAST-WEST TRADE

Recently representatives of the U.S. State Department, in testimony before Congress, requested that the Export Control Act be extended. This act, which expired last month, puts limits on trade with Communist countries.

This act should in fact, be extended. Our country should do nothing to bolster the economies of communist nations, especially while U.S. servicemen are fighting communism in South Vietnam.

At the same time the act should be strengthened. U.S. exports to communist bloc countries have increased 56% since 1962 despite its present provisions. Among the items authorized for sale have been rubber, aluminum and magnesium scrap. These items have military significance and undoubtedly may have found their way to North Vietnam for use against our fighting men.

In light of these facts it is disturbing to note that the Commerce Department is reportedly planning to relax some of its controls on East-West trade.

The Office of Export Control is considering action to increase the number of products that may be transshipped from non-communist countries to communist ones, to relax the requirements for individual export licenses for many items, and to process requests for licenses more rapidly.

Industrial chemicals, nuclear radiation testing equipment, and metal-working machinery are among the items which would be more readily available to the communists if these plans are implemented.

The administration made a wise decision in requesting extension of the Export Control Act. But this policy must be consistently applied in all departments of government so that we will do nothing to strengthen our enemy. HLH

BEHIND THE CURTAIN:

Romanians Still Cheering Nixon's Type Revolution

Busteni, Socialist Republic of Romania – It has been this way all along the road from Bucharest to this Carpathian mountain town. Cheers for the Americans. Cheers for Richard Nixon. Cheers, though it is now almost a month since the President visited the Communist capital scores of miles away.

On Bucharest's outskirts a gypsy trio recognizes some strangers as Americans, and while the fiddles didn't exactly cry, they did scratch out that fine American tune, Al Jolson's "Sonny Boy."

In a Munich - like beer hall, Carul Cu Bere, a queenly white-haired lady regally kisses an American newsman and raises her wine glass to our far- off land and President Nixon.

High in the mountains, at Brasov, two school boys hurry down the street to hand the American "journalist" four Romanian stamps as a "gift" to President Nixon.

Nearby, a restaurant owner hears that the Americans have reserved a table. He improvises a small American flag on a stand and the band, searching for American tunes, strikes up the "Indian Love Call," "Rosemarie, I love you" and "My Yiddishe Mama" as the Americans enter.

And in Busteni, pop. 12,500, thousands of chickens, shepherds with 200 sheep apiece and privately owned land in this non- collectivized part of Communist Romania, the people come into the streets to applaud. The mayor's lady offers fine Romanian wine. But the appointment is with His Honor down at City Hall on Bulevardul Libertatii -- the boulevard of freedom.

This is a small town of chicken, sheep, a newsprint plant, a bakery, seven cops, two people on welfare and lots of cheese -- but don't get Mayor Marin Militaru wrong. He's a dedicated Communist. He's just back from the Romanian Communist Party's Tenth Congress. He's 46. He's gently amused at American's multiparty system. He's interested in Mayor Lindsay's election campaign. He's amazed to hear that New York has one million people on welfare. (In Busteni everybody who can works, or no relief).

And he's convinced that Richard Nixon is a "sincere man" -- albeit a a capitalist, and a Republican, to boot.

Mayor Militaru was in Bucharest, with Richard Nixon, when the latter visited President Ceausescu and discussed Vietnam.

Having heard Mr. Nixon then and having been in Bucharest as a delegate to the party Congress when President Nixon came in early August, Mayor Militaru says that what he heard convinces him that the U.S. President tells it as it is. But in quiet terms.

Mind you now, all this comes from a mountain town Communist mayor. He and his people, and the gypsy trio and the regal lady and the boys and women and workers of this state no longer believe Americans are imperialist ogres. And they no longer fear saying so.

This will spread. No one can curtain off valleys, mountains, plains, rivers and even highways reaching across all of Eastern Europe.

The words re-echo from the Carpathians to the Black Sea, the Urals to the Danube. In one month there is a change. This is news as great as victory in some deadly battle.

And Dic Nixon did it.

Not Arthur Schlesinger Jr. Not Ted Sorensen. Not Ted Kennedy.

Not the Galbraiths with their ersatz left- wing political lore nor the Americans for Democratic Action with their infantile leftism. It is Dick Nixon – the man they scorned, the man they flayed, the man they spent more than two decades attempting to destroy physically and psychologically-- who did it.

This is obvious anywhere in Communist Romania. Mostly, this is a literate Latin nation. On its streets are some of Europe's finest bookstores-- one so new that its back wall is of colorful stained glass in modern design. The stalls are loaded with volumes on Marx, Engels, Lenin and the other Communist - Socialist left- wing theoreticians.

If the people here want left-wing thinking they can get it in the original. They have no need for latter- day interpretation by puerile American litterateurs.

They want realism. They want housing. They want supermarkets of the American kind -- of which there is one now in oil - rich Ploesti. They want mass- produced cloth -- and dresses and suits, shirts, shoes. They want to live comfortably.

They want it in freedom and dignity.

They want it in the style and standards of America -- not the Soviet Union. That's why they cheered Richard Nixon. He's the realism of today, not tomorrow's pie-in- the -sky.

They're not quarreling with their nation's ideology. Actually they don't pay it much heed. They're too preoccupied with their income, or lack of it, too absorbed in seeking what their few dollars can buy. They see America as a gushing cornucopia. And they love it.

They admire the men who have made capitalism work, even if they do fault us on Vietnam. They want the good things of life. They see them embodied in the U.S. and President Nixon. That's why they cheered him -- and continue to cheer Americans.

Home Sweet Home

DOVE HUNTING opens the Missouri bird season and hunters will be trying for the elusive gray streaks between now and Oct. 30. Daily limit is 10 and possession limit is 20. (Department of Conservation photo).

OSBORN -- Old 733-18917, one of those feathered rockets they call doves, has been caught freeloading five times. For a freeloader, he's a pretty elite fellow -- he's one of the last seven and a half percent of his class.

Bill McDonnold, Area Manager at Pony Express Wildlife Area near here, has caught the dove five times since 1967 -- twice on successive days in 1967, twice in a week in 1968 and once this year.

"It's not unusual to re-trap doves," says game biologist Ken Sadler. "After they become adults, they home pretty faithfully to fairly precise nesting areas. Immatures, on the other hand, are much less apt to be re-trapped at the site of their original capture. We're not completely sure why adult doves return to their nesting sites better than immatures return to their natal areas, but part of it can be explained by differences in mortality rates. About 70 percent of all young doves are lost each year compared with about 50 percent of the adults. So, if 733-18917 was born in 1966, only 30 percent of his year class survived to 1967 -- 15 percent to 1968 and 7½ to 1969.

"Since only about five percent of all doves banded in Missouri were recovered by hunters, we believe that natural mortality kills far more doves than hunters do."

Sadler holds a note of optimism for Missouri dove hunters who took to the stubblefields yesterday when the season opened (it runs through Oct. 30).

Even though the breeding population of doves is the lowest it has been in a number of years, the dove season is dependent more on weather than on overall dove numbers.

"If we don't have any nights with temperatures into the 50's and cold rain," Sadler says, "We could have a bonanza dove season. But when it's cool and wet, the immature birds migrate early and they make up the bulk of the hunters bag."

And as for old 733-18917? McDannold philosophizes: "I only wish he and I could communicate. Although he might be a shy felow and not want to divulge his activities, I'd like to know if he traveled south for the winter or is he local.

"And I'd like to know about his love life. Is he monogamous or polygamus? How many families has he sired? In any event, he must be somewhat of a freeloader (trap bait is easy feed) and perhaps not too smart. One of his parents must be mislaid an instinct gene which hasn't bothered him to this point. Or maybe he's a victim of DDT rearrangement of his genetic makeup."

Whatever 733-18917's secrets, he'd better be looking for a hiding place pretty soon -- but then if he is the average dove and runs into the kind of shooting used by the average hunter, he could live to be a hundred.

Carlton Wins 16th

It took a little work, but Lefty Steve Carlton enjoyed the fruits of his Labor Day toil as he hurled a four-hitter and scked a threerun homer for the St. Louis Cardinals last night at Houston.

The result was a 6-2 triumph over the Houston Astros and the 16th victory for Carlton, for whom Jim Grant saved the game when he came on in the seventh inning. Carlton is now 16-7.

The Cards exploded for five runs in the seventh to break a scoreless deadlock.

Houston starter Don Wilson was the loser. Carlton didn't allow his first hit until the fifth.

Astros catcher John Edwards homered off of Grant with nobody on in the eighth.

Houston scored its other run in the seventh when Joe Morgan, who had walked and stolen second, went home on a single by Tommy Davis, who was making his debut as an Astro. It was Morgan's 37th stolen base his season.

The loss was the 11th in the last 17 games for the Astros and dropped them 5½ games off the western division pace in the National League.

Howie Pollet, who played in an oldtimers' game between Houston and the 962 National League all-stars prior to the regular game, remembers Carlton well.

He was pitching coach at St. Louis when Carlton tried out for the major leagues at st. Louis in 1964.

Pollet observed the workout and later inquired, "We signed that skinny kid, didn't we?"

The answer was "no." Pollet then made sure the answer was "yes."

The all-stars won the threeinning game 3-2 in their lineup were such greats as Stan Musial, Red Schoendienst, Granny Hamner, Bob Rush, Robin Roberts, Hal Smith, Astros manager Harry Walker, Larry jmiggins, Roy Campanella, Pete Runnels, Bobby Thomson and Pidge Brown.

A September rainstorm and a jjune plane ride sound like a couple of wildly unrelated things—but they sure teamed up to put a dent in jcincinnati's hopes in the dizzy National League West title chase.

The rainstorm washed out the Reds' scheduled game with the Chicago Cubs after a 90-minute wait Monday night.

That postponement, coupled with San Francisco's 12-2 rout of Montreal earlier in the day, enabled the Giants to reclaim first place, just .002 percentage points ahead of the Reds.

And, that mid-June flight has the Reds in danger of doing a little more slipping tonight.

Last June 15, Chicago was leading Cincinnati 5-4 after seven innings of the second game of a doubleheader, when the game was suspended to permit the Reds to catch a plane to San Francisco, where they were scheduled to play the next afernoon.

That game will be resumed from the point of interruption—with the Cubs holding that 5-4 lead—tonight before the regularly scheduled match with the NL's East Division leaders.

Meanwhile, Willie Davis extended his hitting streak to 29 games in helping Los Angeles to a 10-6 success over the New York Mets that kept the Dodgers just .003 percentage points back of the Giants. The loss dropped the cMets 4½ games back of the Cubs in the NL East.

Pittsburgh clipped Atlanta 7-1 to drop the sagging Braves three games off the pace in the West, while St. Louis whipped Houston 6-2, and San Diego topped Philadelphia 5-2 in other games.

Davis' sizzling single to center in the second inning enabled him to tie Zack Wheat's all-time Dodger record hitting streak and put the veteran outfielder just eight games shy of the modern NL record set by Tommy Holmes of the old Boston Braves in 1945.

Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees holds the major league record—56 rames—and there are enough games remaining on the Dodger schedule for Davis to conceivably match that lofty mark.

"It takes a little luck," sai Davis of the streak. "If you make contact with the ball, you have a better chance, and I'm doing that. The last couple of days I felt a little pressure, but now it's off."

Andy Kosco lashed four hits and knocked in three runs in leading the 16-hit Dodger attack. Tommie AKGEE AND Duffy Dyer homered for the Mets.

Ken Henderson drove in four runs and Jim Davenport produced three RBIs with three hits in four trips in guiding San Francisco's rout—the 12th vicory in 14 games for the Giants.

Lefty Ray Sadecki, 5-8, scattered six hits and helped himself out by drawing three walks.

Bob Moose checked Atlanta on seven hits as the Braves dropped their sixth straight at home. Gene Alley and Willie Stargell hit consecutive homers for the Pirates in the third.

Marciano Dead, Respected By All

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) — Rocky Marciano, the Brockton Blockbuster, was mourned today by the people of this city who idolized him.

Marciano, who left coal shoveling and dich digging in his hometown and went on to win the world heavyweight boxing championship, died Sunday night in a plane crash in an Iowa farmyard.

Marciano captured the title in 1952 with a kn ckout of Jersey Joe Walcott and eventually retired undefeated in 1956.

He was killed when a light plane carrying him to his birthday celebration crashed in Newton, Iowa. His body was returned here Monday, the day he would have been 46 years old.

His professional career started in Holyoke with a threeround knockout over Lee Epperson and ended in New York eight years and 49 undefeated fights later with a ninth-round knockout over Archie Moore.

Known as a fighter who didn't know the art of boxing, he'd take as many punches as necessary to land one.

"I got lucky tonight because I only got nailed a couple of times," he once told a reporter after a fight in 1952. "But in tough fights, I have headaches for a week or two weeks. Sometimes I actually hear humming

.. and I know that can't be good for me."

Then he added: "But I used to have a sore back all the time from shoveling coke at the jbrockton Back Gas Works. For this I get pad better."

"Inside the ring he was a lion, outside a lamb," was the way Walcott described Marciano.

Former champ Sonny Liston said Marciano "was one of the greatest champions there ever was," and deposed champion Cassius Clay told a reporter Marciano was "the onliest one that would hace given me some trouble."

Althcugh respected by those who fought him, Marciano's free-swinging, plodding style found little praise with he boxing experts.

"However," Marciano once remarked after his retirement, "K' 4? YEARS FROM NOW FIGHT FANS WILL LOOK AT MY RECORD AND KNOW I fought everybody around and never lost a fight. I might even end up a living legend."

A funeral Mass will be celebrated at St. Coleman's Church Thursday, and another Mass will be celebrated Friday at St. Pius Church in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where Marciano made his home for the past several years.

Burial will be in Queen of Heaven Cemetery, Fort Lauderdale.

Survivors include his widow, Barbara; a daughter, Mary Ann, 16, and an infant son, Rocky Kevin, 17 months old.

$58,000 In Prize Money Offered By Cape Fair

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Everything from Appaloosa horses to zinnias will be competing for more than $58,000 in prize money at the Southeast Missouri District Fair September 9 through 14 in Cape Girardeau.

In addition to judging of the thousands of classes entered in the fair, special events are planned for each day.

Heading the list of attractions are performances of the Joie Chitwood Thrill Show featuring daring driving stunts, at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Lee Mace's Ozark Opry, a popular country music group, will appear for only one show, at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Pony and tractor pulling contests, horse races, a garden tractor rodeo and dog shows are just few of the other events planned.

Gator Bowl Champs Return 27. Toward Sept. 20 Opener

Last football season on Parker's Garage [illegible] Outboards Boats Motors Trailers Service the Tide, clubbing the Bear.

Some 27 lettermen off that Bator Bowl championship team will provide the under-pinning for Coach Dan Devine's 12th Mizzou team that opened two-a-day workouts here Friday morning.

Missouri begins training for a season in which the Tigers and Oklahoma are grouped atop the Big Eight roost by grid forecasters as most likely to succeed. Rich backfield talent is cited as the Black and Gold's strength -- and defense as the likely trouble spot.

Devine, though, frets about the fitness of ball-carriers Jon Staggers and James Harrison, both spring casualties. The versatile Staggers, a two-year regular, fractured his leg in mid-April. Harrison, a quick 230-pound fullback, pulled a hamstring muscle the first day, and and his subsequent inactivity deferred plans to train him at tailback.

Terry McMillan, senior quarterback, goes into '69 as the club's No. 1 entry. The slick option threat scored three times against 'Bama to win the Most Vaulable player award. He'll work with a top combination of Joe Moore, tailback; Staggers, slotback; and Ron McBride, fullback. Harrison and Tyrone Walls are the other veterans challenging for first-string status.

Defensively, the most urgent need is to replace five graduated regulars, among them all-America Roger Wehrli at safety. Reassuring, however, is the presence of senior tackles "Rocky" Wallace and Mark Kuhlman -- probably the best pair of spoilers Missouri ever has fielded at that position. Wallace, all-league in 1968, will miss the first week of heavy work because of a pulled muscle.

Only one 1968 letterman, reserve tackle Lynn Cox, did not report with the squad. The 230-pound junior lineman from Memphis, Tenn., faces a draft situation, Devine said, which makes his plans indefinite.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Good Old Nylon Net Serves to 'Firm' Collar

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Good old nylon net! I recently knitted a dress with a cowl neckline but the collar dropped. I took two thicknesses of a matching color nylon net and, using two strands of leftover yarn, lined the collar with about ¼-inch of the net extending beyond the neckline seam and ending about ½-inch from the edge of the collar. It now stands up in a nice roll.—EDITH

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—My husband always sits in a swivel rocker with a maple-finished hardwood trim. The uncovered ends of the arms where he rests his hands are sticky and the finish is coming off. I would like to know how I can refinish the arms so it will last. —DONNA

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. B. J. T. can make a darling coffee table for her porch, den or patio out of her broken ironing board. Add screw-on legs bought at the hardware store, then paint the table top or cover it with vinyl. I have one topped with old-fashioned irons that serve as book-ends. It is quite a conversation piece. A piece of marbleized linoleum, cut to fit the top, also would be effective.—MRS. J. O. A.

DEAR POLLY—If you have difficulty putting slip covers on your furniture, use a spoon to get into the corners. The handle of a wooden spoon is very good for getting into tight places.—PAULINE

DEAR GIRLS—I find a rather dull silver knife is great to use when pushing a slip cover down between the arms, seat and the back and seat.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I would like to tell Ruby that when my bird bath gets slick or green with algae I sweep all the water out, pour in a little liquid bleach and scrub with a long-handled nylon brush. Rinse well with clear water. This lasts for quite awhile.—OLD BACHELOR

Senate Bribe Allegations Reportedly Being Probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allegations that two senators took bribes to influence a government contract are being investigated by a federal grand jury in Baltimore, The Washington Post reported today.

In a copyrighted story, the newspaper said the jury is investigating Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., and former Democratic Sen. Daniel B. Brewster of Maryland. Brewster was defeated for re-election last year.

Long described the allegations as "cock and bull," telling the paper by telephone from Baton Rouge, La., Friday night that someone stole a lot of campaign money and was trying to escape the penitentiary by trying to put Brewster in his place, the Post reported.

U.S. Atty. Stephen H. Sachs of Maryland described as directing the probe, told the Post he has "no specific comment at all, other than to say that a special grand jury in Baltimore has been inquiring into possible violations of federal bribery laws since early this year."

The Post said Brewster is in Ireland and could not be reached for comment.

The newspaper reported the case on which the grand jury is focusing much of its attention involves allegations that Brewster and Long shared a bribe for exerting pressure to get extra costs approved for extensive underground parking facilities recently built for the House in connection with construction of the $100-million-plus Rayburn House office building.

It added that this allegation is that the two were paid to pressure the office of the Capitol architect to approve "extras" for the garages.

The prime contractor for the construction is Baltimore Contractors, Inc., the paper said, adding that its prssident—Victor J. Frenkil—is a contributor to Brewster and the Democratic party and is a friend of Long.

The total price for the underground garages was to be $13.5 million and it was to have been completed by April 1966, the Post said. It added that Frenkil's contract was for $11.7 million.

The Post said that, according to testimony by officials in the Capitol architect's office, the government was not able to use the garage until September 1967.

It added that during construction, Baltimore Contaactors and the Capitol architect's office agreed to add certain "extras," called change orders, to the contract. As of late last week, the Post said, these amounted to more than 100 small orders for additions to the contract—resulting in an additional $384,000 being paid to Baltimore Contractors.

After completion, the Post said, Baltimore Contractors filed claims for $5,021,199 more, contending the government had made special requests of the contractor on the job and that some information on soil conditions had been in error—costing the contractor additional money.

The newspaper said most of these claims by the firm have not been paid by the government.

The paper said the allegations to federal investigators include the contention that Long and Brewster exerted direct pressure on the architect's office to get those extras, and as much of the claims as possible, approved. It is alleged, the Post said, that the senators were to share a percentage of any such windfall profits reaped by the contractors.

Enrollment Same as 1968

EAST PRAIRIE — Total enrollment of 1,815 pupils was recorded at the East Prairie R-2 School district, approximately the same as last year, according to Supt. Ray Milton. This number is expected to be increased followings some additional admissions after the Labor Day holiday, he said.

In the elementary school 1,050 were recorded from kindergarten through the Sixth grade. Webb Junior High showed a 280 pupil enrollment and the East Prairie High School has 475, the records show.

In captivity, the average elephant drinks 60 gallons of water every day, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Improve Care at Hospital

Major changes effecting delivery of service to patients at Farmington State Hospital have been announced by the superintendent, Retus W. Osborn, M.D. Through de-centralization and geographic planning the hospital's psychiatric staff nd facilities have been reorganized to improve the quality and continuity of care a patient may expect to receive.

Instead of caring for peop in areas of a single hospita complex, units which approximate a total hospital in medical and ancillary services have been set up on three geographic levels. Each unit has an acting clinical director, nursing supervisor, rehabilitation counselor, social worker, hospital grant coordinator and activity coordinator. Wards have been set up for both male and female patients on the unit and each ward is staffed with a psychiatrist, nursing personnel, social worker and mental health expeditors.

Geographic Unit I patients are from the counties of Bollinger, Cape Girardeau, Madison, Perry, Ste. Genevieve, Shannon, Wayne, Ripley, Reynolds, Oregon, Carter and Butler. In Unit II are patients from the counties of Crawford, Dent, Iron, St. Francois and Washington. Counties served by Unit III are Dunklin, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Mississippi, Scott and Stoddard.

The geographic system is expected to increase interaction of the staff, provide greater continuity of care from admission through out-patient service, and create a healthy spirit of competition among the unit teams. It is also believed that social workers and other hospital professionals concerned with designated county areas will become more familiar with community agencies and resources which are utilized in rehabilitation and discharge planning.

Hospital areas not in the new geographical set-up include medical wards, geriatrics and the Alcohol Treatment Center.

Volpe Says Noise Factor Delays SST

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe says unresolved questions about sonic booms and domestic priorities have slowed a White House decision on further subsidies for a supersonic transport plane.

"Until I am satisfied and the President is satisfied about the noise factor and a few other situations, plus the cost in relation to some of the other domestic problems, I don't think you will see the President make a decision here," Volpe said.

The former Massachusetts governor was interviewed by Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., on the congressman's weekly radio broadcast.

Volpe's recommendation on financing further SST development has been on President Nixon's desk since spring.

The government already has spent $600 million for research and design study on the 1,800 mile-an-hour, 298-passenger plane. At least another $600 million in federal subsidies will be needed for the Boeing Corp. to build and test fly two prototype aircraft.

Boeing's 2,000-man SST team is subsisting on $6 million a month in unspent appropriations from 1967.

Volpe said the only reason a government subsidy "would be considered at all is the fact that America must remain in the leadership position, whether it is in airplane manufacturing or whether it is in shipbuilding or in any other area." This is important, he said, to America's balance of trade payments with the rest of the world.

Congress appropriated no new money for the trouble-plagued SST last year and President Nixon postponed recommending any money this year until the final design was approved. Boeing cleared the design hurdle last spring.

Congressional opponents of the project say the government should not further subsidize the aircraft industry. They contend the money could be better used for pressing domestic needs.

The critics also complain about the sonic boom that would be caused by supersonic flights.

Federal Aviation Administration officials say the boom problem is overrated and the SST would fly only at subsonic speeds over land.

Top-level Department of Transportation officials believe the single biggest barrier to further SST noney is the President's concern that additional spending on the project might fuel inflation.

Boeing officials in Washington say the President must decide soon or the company will have to dismantle its SST team in December.

N. E. Fuchs

FuchsAppointed Key Dealer by State Group

N. E. Fuchs, a local Oldsmobile - Cadillac- GMC dealer, has been appointed a KEY DEALER for the Missouri Automobile Dealers Association to stimulate active participation in the association's statewide programs throughout Scott County. The appointment runs to May 31, 1970.

Mr. Fuchs was selected as a key dealer by the Board of Directors of the Missouri Automobile Dealers Association. The appointment was announced by Thomas E. Costello, President of MADA.

The Missouri Automobile Dealers Association represent 750 franchised new car and truck dealers throughout the state. The state organization is widely known for its programs of sponsorship of drivers' education, automobile safety, sales tax on the cash difference law-- where a used car is traded in; retail time sales act which safeguards the consumer in time sales transactions; and other public- interest programs; and most recently for its program supporting high standards and ethics of retail automobile merchandising, its Seal of Integrity program.

Timothy Seed Crop Shows Slight Increase

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) - Missouri, the nation's second biggest state in timothy seed production, is forecast to turn out a crop of 4,340,000 pounds this year, up 3 per cent from the 1968 total.

The increase in production is attributed to a 7 per cent increase in the number of acres harvested with production from 31,000 acres this year as against 29,000 last year.

Yield of the hay crop seed in Missouri is 140 pounds an acre in the forecast, down five pounds from last year.

Minnesota with more than twice as much acreage in timothy as Missouri has leads the nation with a forecast production of 13,680,000 pounds this year. The figures are from the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Largest Pyramid

The Pyramid of Giza erected by Cheops is the largest of Egypt's pyramids. According to Herodotus, 100,000 men were employed for 20 years in building it, while 10 years were occupied in transporting the stones.

Courtmartial Ordered for 2 Evans Officers

MANILA (AP) — The U.S. Navy today ordered a courtmartial for the commanding officer of the destroyer Frank E. Evans and the officer of the deck at the time the ship and the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne collided June 2

Seventy four Americans were lost in the collision.

Vice Adm. W. F. Bringle, commander of the 7th Fleet, ordered the military trial for Cmdr. Albert S. McLemore, 37, of San Pedro, Calif., and Lt. (j.g.) Ronald C. Ramsey, 24, of Long Beach, Calif. It was expected to begin about Sept. 10 at Subic naval base.

No court martial was ordered for the junior officer of the watch at the time of the collision, Lt. (j.g.) James A. Hopson, 28, of Kansas City, Kan., but a Navy spokesman said Adm. Bringle would deal with him in a nonjudicial hearing.

The Australian navy already has cleared the Melbourne's skipper at a court-martial of negligence.

The Melbourne and the Evans collided during night maneuvers in the South China Sea. The destroyer was acting as part of the carrier's screen and was changing station from ahead of the Melbourne to astern of her. The carrier cut the destroyer in half, sinking the bow half.

McLemore and Ramsey were charged with negligence and dereliction of duty. Adm. Bringle said he based these "obviously very serious" charges on the investigation conducted at Subic in August into the collision.

Governments Can Combat Inflation

Dr. Kershner

FIRST, what can city governments do to combat inflation? They can operate honest, resourceful administrations, minimizing waste and maximizing efficiency. They can refuse to offer services which are not needed, to extend favoritism or to tolerate illegal strikes. They can reduce losses due to crime by means of prompt and adequate punishment of criminals. They can trim their relief rolls and provide employment in exchange for relief extended to able-bodied people. They can keep fringe benefits within a reasonable range and forbid unnecessarily early retirement.

Such suggestions will no doubt be highly unpopular. But in the long run the only way to remain free and to maintain decent living standards is to live within our income. In long-term perspective, there is no such thing as consuming more than we produce. In its extreme form, the attempt to have more than we produce can jeopardize our freedom, bring bankruptcy and chaos upon ourselves and make it possible for a dictator to seize power and enforce his will upon us.

What can state and federal governments do to combat inflation. They can follow the same principle as that recommended for cities—balance expenditures with receipts. A government receives a certain sum of money each year through tax revenues, and it should not extend its expenditures beyond this limit. The federal government should balance the budget and refrain from spending more than it collects each year. Presidents should offer realistic legislative proposals. Congressmen and Senators must limit their appropriations of money strictly to essentials. They should take care to study every bill in depth from a budgetary standpoint, and should be very reluctant to vote tax increases, knowing that they are expected to be custodians of public monies and defenders of the public interest.

Howard Kershner's Commentaries. Distributed by the CHRISTIAN FREEDOM FOUNDATION, 3030 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, California 90005

EVER watch how Old Glory is folded when it is lowered and taken off the staff? It is folded into a triangular shape with stars showing. This shape is symbolic of the cocked hat of the American War of Independence. (ANF)

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Mary Jo's rescue possible; diver describes life-saving pocket; Burger plans overhaul of judicial system

WASHINGTON--The preliminary investigation into the drowning of Mary Jo Kopechne has raised an agonizing question that will haunt the Kennedy inquest this week. Could Mary Jo have been rescued from the bottom of Poucha Pond if Sen. Ted Kennedy had only rushed to the nearest house and banged on the door for help?

John Farrar, the diver who removed Mary Jo's body from the submerged car, has told authorities that "a large amount of air would have initially been trapped" inside the car. Had he been summonded immediately after the accident, Farrar declared, there was "a strong possibility that she would have been alive.

The navy-trained diving expert gave his electrifying testimony and backed it up with a detailed diagram at a pre-hearing interrogation on August 20. He was questioned by Lt. George Killen, who has been assigned by the Massachusetts State Police to assist District Attorney Edumdn Dinis with the Kennedy investigation.

Farrar described from his own measurements how the death car had hurtled off Dyke bridge for a distance of approximately 36 feet and then dropped eight feet, hitting the water at a 45-degree angle. The momentum flipped it over, he conjectured, "bringing the car to settle upside down in the water."

--Trapped Air?--

"On impact," he said, "the water would have gushed through the two right windows. However, due to the vertical settling of the car, a large amount of air would have initially been trapped underneath the floor of the car."

He pointed to his diagram, which showed "a possible water level based on lthe way the car entered the water and settled." In his sketch, the air pocket was large enough to have sustained life for a while. The position of Mary Jo's body suggested, in his opinion, that she may have been trying desperately to take advantage of the last air.

He found the body in the right rear seat. Emphasizing again that the car was botton up, he testified: "With respect to the seat, she was upside down. With respect of the water, she was right side up. Her head was cocked back, her face pressed into the foot well." This is where the air bubble likely would have formed.

"I found when I inspected the car underwater," he added, "that there was no air within the occupants' section of the car. However, by the statement of John Ahlbum and Joe Cerpa when the car was first moved by cable or by winch, numerous air bubbles escaped from the car while still underwater."

Farrar suggested that "Ted Kennedy could have escaped from the driver's window as it was the only one rolled down and by the roll of the car would have been the last window submerged. His door was locked, which could have occurred, incidentally, during his egress since the locking device was the button on the edge of the window."

Once out of the water, Kennedy could have reached nearby Dyke house in a matter of seconds. The house was occupied by Mrs. Pierre Malm, who has stated that her lights were on at the time of the accident.

--Possibility of Rescue--

"Had I received a call within five to ten minutes of the accident occurring," declared Farrar," and was able, as I was the following morning, to be at the victim's side within 25 minutes of receiving the call, in such event there is a strong possibility that she would have been alive upon removal from this submerged car."

Summarizing, Farrar gave five reasons why he believed that Mary Jo Kipechne may have survived for several terrifying minutes, trapped in Kennedy's car at the bottom of Poucha Pond.

"Number one," said the diver, "the position of the car upon entering into the water, which I had deduced . . .,

"The position of the submerged car on the bottom of the water. That is number two.

"Number three, what I feel to be the consciously assumed position of the victim as distinguished from the prone position which, to me, was indicate of a person being consciously aware of the immediate situation in an attempt to save one's life by obtaining the last breath of air.

"Four, the fact that air bubbles emanated from the car upon removal by the wrecker two hours after I removed the victim from the submerged car. "And five, the fact that there was a large air void and lack of water in the car's trunk 10 hours after the accident was alleged to have occurred."

--Court Reforms--

It has now leaked out that Chief Justice Warren Burger, before his appointment, conferred with President Nixon on the urgent need for judicial reforms.

He told the President that court procedures needed to be drastically overhauled, that legal education should be brought up to date, that prisons needed a complete shake-up, and that the whole judicial system must be modernized. Burger would like to take the management of the courts out of the hands of the judges, for example, and put professional administrators in charge.

The president encouraged Burger to go ahead with his reforms. Result: the new Chief Justice, a Rock of Gibraltar conservative, is now planning the greatest liberalization of our courts since the dawn of the century.

Dentist Not Liable For Faulty Needle

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Barney had a tooth that was driving him to extraction. But being a coward, by the time he finally got to the dentist it became a major production to pull it out.

His whole mouth was tender and sore but it didn't compare to how sore Barney was when the dentist jabbed a needle into his jaw and the needle broke in two. If that wasn't enough, things became even more involved when Barney sued the dentist for the injury sustained. It seemed that while the needle had looked in fine fettle, its metal contained a hidden defect.

"So, what's he want from me?" queried the tooth driller in court. "I'm only a dentist. It's not my fault I got stuck with a bad needle."

"When a man resorts to a dangerous weapon like a hypodermic needle," retorted Barney, "it's up to him to make sure it's in safe working order. After all, a dentist isn't supposed to just run a filling station. He's supposed to be an expert with his equipment."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the dentist pay for Barney's agony?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The Judge held that when a tool breaks as the result of a hidden defect, and through no fault of the user, the user cannot be held responsible for the consequences. In this case, concluded the judge, Barney's injury was due to the hidden fault of the needle and not the dentist.

What We Think About It

By Lt. Colonel Norman E. May
of Warwick, Bermuda

Reason 4. Russia.

Professor Wald states: "the thought that we're in competition with Russians and Chinese is all a mistake and trivial". Far from being a mistake and trivial". I consider our "competition" with Russia as the greatest concern of our lives and the cause for the greatest uneasiness. The Bolshevik party proclaimed in 1917 and have restated it many times since, even to this day, that they would win the world for International Communism, meaning their own bureaucratic dictatorship. I don't believe they have deviated one iota from this ambition and I, personally, fear they are too perilously close to realizing their goal. As evidence:

the seas are crowded with Russian naval and merchant ships and are aswarm with Russian submarines. (what purpose do the countless Russian "fishing" boats serve on the U.S. Atlantic and Pacific coasts?)

Russia has completely re-equipped Nasser with all modern materials of war and has moved a major portion of its naval strength to the Mediterranean.

the continuous and continuing supply of war materials to North Vietnam. How long could North Vietnam continue the war without Russian military hardware?

the invasion and subjugation of Czechoslovakia.

the initial and continuing support to Castro in Cuba and the operation and maintenance of guerrilla training schools in Cuba.

the infiltration and subversion of African and South American governments.

It is a reasonable assumption from the many "spy" cases that have been revealed since the war that the major governments of the western world have been and still are infiltrated by card-holding or fellow-traveller type Russian agents. Kim Philby's contact or boss has never been revealed and could well be a most respected civil servant high in the U.K. government.

It is a reasonable assumption that the higher echelons of the trades unions of Great Britain, and probably elsewhere, are still infiltrated by Russian sympathizers and agents. They are certainly being successful in wrecking the economy of the U.K.

It is a reasonable assumption that the international and national news services, even to top levels, are infiltrated by Russian sympathizers and agents. Scan almost any news report in newspaper, radio or T.V. and note the red influence or bias.

It is a reasonable assumption that the teaching professions of the West on the University, College, High School and even down to Grade School levels, have been infiltrated and too large a proportion of our teachers and professors fuzzily dream of a communist Utopia.

A headless hen that, for 12 hours after she was decapitated, walked around the corral like any other chicken has been worrying Ephraim Tucker, a local stationery merchant, residing at 408 Eureka Street according to a Redlands, (Cal.) dispatch to the New York Herald. The hen had been suffering several days from what is known as the gapes. She became so sickly that after a conference with his wife, Tucker decided to cut the hen's head off and end her misery. When he performed the operation the wound did not bleed. Instead of fluttering to the ground, the hen walked off a few feet and stood still, Tucker was puzzled. When he returned at 11 o'clock he went back to the corral with a lantern. The hen was still standing and in addition had laid an egg. Next morning the merchant went to the chicken yard once more. The headless hen had moved 20 feet, but was apparently as full of life as any of the other chickens. Tucker could stand it no longer. He seized the hen and with the hatchet cut off what was left of its neck. This time the hen fluttered and died.

TEN QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question 1. Would direct popular election lead to a splintering of the two-party system?

Answer. Whatever the historical reasons for the initial appearance of two parties on the American political scene, most political scientists are agreed that its continued existence is due mostly to the fact that in the United States political contests are decided in single-member districts. In other words, in an election there is but one prize to be won. The electoral mechanics of the single member district, in terms of its effect on the party system, are such that they tend to force factions to combine in order to be certain of capturing a popular vote plurality and victory. Since direct popular election would not affect the nature of the Presidency, and it would remain a single member office, there is little likelihood of direct election splintering the parties.

Conversely, the simplest way to splinter the parties would be to offer a share of power to factions in proportion to their relative strengths, Direct popular election, unlike other proposed reforms, would avoid the prospect of multiple parties by offering only one prize, thus maintaining the incentive to coalesce around the two major parties.

In addition, we have proposed in S.R. Jes. 1 a 40 percent plurality requirement as a further safeguard against a proliferation of the parties. The 40 percent requirement would encourage potential splinter groups to continue to operate within the framework of the two party system, since no minor party could reasonably hope to win 40 percent of the total popular vote. At present, it should be pointed out, third parties are encouraged to enter close Presidential contests in the hope of playing a balance of power role--as in 1948 and again in 1968. Under direct election, however, the splinter party's strength would be diluted by the fact that it would be measured against the nationwide popular vote totals of the major parties' candidates and thus would require a minimum of 20 percent of the popular vote--and in most instances somewhat more. In the unlikely event of a runoff, only the two top vote-getters participate. This would discourage minor parties from entering the contest, since it is highly improbable that they would be among the top two.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT YOUR PRESCRIPTION:
It's meant for you!
The human body is an efficient organism. It runs like clockwork with each vital part doing its job. When one of these parts breaks down or a foreign substance attacks, the body reacts to the blow in a way all its own. Chemicals in the diseased area begin immediately to repair the break. Often these are not enough and chemicals from other parts of the body are utilized. When this happens a chemical imbalance is caused. Your doctor examines you to determine the amount and type of chemicals involved. He may feel it necessary to add chemicals to your system in order to defeat the disease . . . this is a prescription. By his diagnosis he can determine which chemicals will do you the most good. Some systems are stronger or better equipped to handle disease. They require less medication. Others need more outside help. Each person is different. That is why you should never use another's prescription nor allow someone else to use yours.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 2 the 245th day of 1969. There are 120 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1666, the great fire of London began. Some 13,000 housesk were destroyed.

On this date:

In 1789, the U. S. Treasury Department was established. Alexander Hamilton was the first secretary.

In 1864, Union forces occupied Atlanta, Ga., during the Civil War.

In 1901, President Theodore Roosevelt made a speech that included his famous statement: 'Speak softly and carry a big stick; you will go far."

In 1940,50 U.S. destroyers were transferred to Britain in exchange for an American lease of military bases in Newfoundland and the British West Indies.

In 1957, Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus ordered National Guard troops and state police to prevent the entry of Negroes at Little Rock's Central High School.

In 1963, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace stopped school integration at Tuskegee High School by encircling the building with state troopers.

Ten years ago — United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold proposed private meetings of the U.N. Security Council to deal with troublesome world problems.

Five years ago — Malaysia charged that Indonesia had parachuted guerrillas into southern Malaysia.

One year ago— A new ruling group in Czechoslovakia empowered to do everything it could to speed the withdrawal of Soviet-block troops.

Profit Illusive in Hydroponic Tomatoes

COLUMBIA -- What kind of farming could bring an easier profit than hydroponic tomato production? All you have to do is give a plant the nutrients it actually needs and a small amount of space.

Sounds good, doesn't it? However, most growers who try to produce this way fail, says Vic Lambert, professor of horticulture at the University of Missouri. Lamberth says costs are high and management must be hair-fine to realize a profit.

Hydroponics, or soilless gardening, involves growing plants in water, sand, or gravel, usually in a greenhouse. A solution of nutrients in water is pumped through the medium, providing the plants with an adequate supply.

This method has been used for more than a century in studies of plant physiology and nutrition, Lambeth says. It is of particular use in studying the effects of a deficiency or surplus of elements, such as nitrogen. The relative amounts of different nutrients used at different times of plant development can also be studied.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

No. 69-35

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q- Is a graduate school fellowship taxable?

A- Income from a fellowship is usually tax exempt. If you are a candidate for a degree there is no limit on the amount of tax-free income you may receive from a fellowship or scholarship grant.

However, if you teach or perform other services in connection with the award, the portion of the award that represents payment for this work is generally taxable. This rule does not apply if all candidates for the degree, whether they have a fellowship or not, are also required to perform these services.

For additional information send a post card to your District Director for a free copy of Republication 507, "Tax Information On Scholarships and Fellowships."

Q- What are the benefits folks over 65 get when the sell their homes?

A- All or part profit made on such sales may be tax free when certain conditions are met. For example, the taxpayer must be 65 or over before the date of the sales and owned and used the home as his principal residence for five of the preceding eight years.

For more details on this provision of the law and to learn more about the tax benefits for those 65 or over, send a post card to your district office and ask for a free copy of Publication 554, "Tax Benefits For Older Americans."

Q- I read where I'll have to fill out an extra form next year to itemize my deductions instead of doing it on the back of the 1040. Is that right?

A-Yes, the place for itemized deductions has been moved from the back of Form 1040 to a separate schedule. The separate form is basically another way to organize the information required in a manner that benefits taxpayers by providing more space to list deductions.

Q- Can you still be audited even though a refund has come through O.K.?

A-Yes. IRS generally has three years from the time a return is filed to make an audit and assess additional taxes. For this reason it is advisable to keep tax records for ordinary income and expense items at least three years. Some records, however, should be retained longer. For example, those supporting costs of investments, etc.

It usually takes about 5-6 weeks to process a return calling for a refund. In that time it is only possible to make sure the return is complete, the arithmetic is accurate and that the taxpayer is not filing a duplicate refund claim or has an outstanding tax liability.

SOFTENED WATER OFFERS BETTER BEAUTY CARE

People who bathe in soft water claim they feel better. They're not imagining things. They really do, because their skin is free of the sticky soap and dirt film that occurs in hard water. The Water Conditioning Foundation points out that the deposit you see in a tub or lavatory bowl when hard water is used is what remains on the skin when it's washed in hard water.

Soft water is important for a good shampoo too. It leaves the hair more lustrous and full-bodied, with less tendency to tangle. When hard water is used, deposits on the hair can cause uneven results with home permanent waves, tinting, dyeing or bleaching, the Foundation notes.

Over 85 percent of the water in the U. S. is hard enough to require treatment. The best way is with an automatic softener that conditions the water before it enters the piping system. In the modern unit, the water flows through a tank containing a chemical that removes certain minerals such as iron and calcium. As the chemical is saturated with the minerals, it's regenerated automatically. The unit is easy to install and requires almost no maintenance.

A booklet full of information on how to put more comfort, convenience and beauty into the home is available for 50 cents. Write to the Foundation at 1780 Maple Street, Northfield, Ill. 60093. Ask for "Quality Water at the Tap."

PAUL FLOWER'S GREEN HOUSE

Ever an enthusiastic bandwagon jumper-on, I join the parade of literary illuminati to bite my thumb at a few popular but offensive words and phrases which seem to titillate the Madison Avenue blacksmiths who aspire to fabricate our opinions.

The American Heritage Dictionary, published jointly with Houghton Mifflin (in three formats, plain-edged $7.95, thumb-indexed $8.95 and deluxe $12.50), will contain a section on good and bad usage of the English language. This part inspired a panel discussion among recognized writers and critics on usage and following are a few examples and comments thereon:

ENTHUSE - Dwight Macdonald: "Let's hold the line on this one."

ERRATAS (as plural form) - Donald Davidson: "To think that we should have lived to see the day when such a question could be asked."

DESCALATE (for de-escalate) - Jacques Barzun: "I would desprecate it." Theodore M. Bernstein: "I freely confess that I am the one who committed infanticide against 'descalate' on the editorial page of The Times."

FINALIZE - Isaac Asimov: "This is nothing more than bureaucratic illiteracy . . . the last resort of the communicatively untalented." John Bainbridge: "To be used only facetiously, except by bureaucrats and generals."

GIFT (as a transitive verb) - Walter J. 'Red' Smith: "If he 'gifts' her wisely, she should 'host' him warmly, which could be immoral."

UNIQUE (as in "rather unique" or "more unique") - John Kieran: "A woman cannot be slightly pregnant."

WISE (suffix, as in "populationwise" or "taxwise") - Winthrop Sargeant: "A Madison Avenue locution which should be avoided by every civilized person."

MEDIA (as singular form, "medias" for plural) - Herbert Brucker: "Used only by modern sociologists who never had first year Latin."

REGIME (in sense of "administration") - Jacques Barzun: "No, and cut out 'dynasty' in the same contexts. These are technical terms, you blasted non-historians."

SENIOR CITIZEN - Berton Roueche: "I'd as soon use 'underprivileged' for 'poor, or any other social science Choctaw."

TOO (for "very") - Gilbert Highet: "My wife's mother used to ask me, 'I don't like soup too hot, do you?' She don't like soup too hot, do you?' She was surprised when I said, 'No one likes soup too hot.' "

GOOD (adverb for "well.") - Mario Pei: "We brew good, like we used to could. What's the use of having an adverb separate from the adjective, if you don't use it? Or do we want to ape German?"

Bravissimo for all these scholars who are wise enough to agree with me. It speaks well for them.

Now if we can scotch a few others, with or without the American Heritage Dictionary, the snail will be on the thorn and Pippa will have reason to welcome the morn. For oblivion I nominate "particular," as in "This particular circumstance," and the "tell it like it is" monstrousity; if we get rid of these, we shall have overcome. A bas forever on misuse of "shambles," "epithet," "flaunt" (for "flout"), "fortunitous" (for "fortunate") and "from whence."

I'll go quietly now.

ATTORNEY GENERAL PRAISES PRESIDENT'S REVENUE SHARING

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. -- President Nixon's proposal for revenue sharing between the Federal Government and the state and local governments won the praise of Attorney Gen. John Danforth recently.

Danforth said he was convinced that local governments in large metropolitan areas need federal and state aid to solve problems "which are growing more colossal in their proportions."

"These problems are evident daily to those who live in large metropolitan areas -- The deterioration of housing, the pollution of air and the alarming increase in the rate of crime," Danforth said.

Danforth said he was most concerned about the problem of crime. "Twenty-six cities of more than one-half million population comprise less than 18 per cent of the total population of the United States, yet these same 26 cities are responsible for more than 34 per cent of all crimes against property and more than one-half of all crimes against persons," the Attorney General said.

The problem of reducing crime hinges on spending more money, Danforth said. "In five years between 1963 and 1968 the cost of providing for a Kansas City policeman rose from $8,300 to $12,200, or an increase of 46 per cent. During the same fire year period, the reported crime rate per officer has risen a factor of eight times faster than the size by which the force has been increase," he said.

Danforth said the revenue sharing program proposed by Mr. Nixon could help solve the problem of crime in the cities.

The Attorney General also praised Nixon for his welfare proposals, saying: "The problem is how to deal effectively with proverty in a nation of affluence. This problem must be solved, for the existence of poverty is doing more than affecting the lives of those who cannot provide for themselves.

"It is under-cutting the confidence of a younger generation of Americans in our system of government which requires their allegiance."

PARKER ATTACKS AUDIT SYSTEM

Rep. George W. Parker (R-Columbia) last week charged that audits of Department of Revenue fee offices were directed against persons in political disfavor in a Democrat factional fight.

"Instead of political adutis, Missouri annual audits of all tax funds," Parker said.

The fee office of Mrs. Shirley Butters of Bowling Green, Democratic national committeewoman, and one formerly operated by the wife of Sen. Robert A. Young (D-St. Ann) were specifically mentioned by Parker.

Young's wife lost her fee office after her husband refused to support an increase in the personal incomes tax last session.

Parker also criticized the lack of audits in enforcement of the state's intangible tax law. "Missouri's entire audit system is in dire need of modernization," he said.

"Lacking proper audits, no one knows how much tax money is being mishandled," Parker said.

HAS HIRING MANUAL

A manual listing sources through which Missouri employers can recruit and hire minority persons has been published by the Missouri Commission on Human Rights, a state agency which researches and implements programs helping minority groups.

Copies of the 38-page publication are being mailed to large employers, civil rights groups, local human relations commissions and other interested persons, according to Richard E. Risk, director.

The manual is seeking to have employers in the state use what the commission terms "affirmative action" in hiring members of minority groups. According to the report, "affirmative action" includes efforts by employers to:

"Include minority persons in all facets of the company's operations - from management to maintenance,

"Insure that company policy toward equal opportunity is not negative, and not neutral-but positive, and

"Increase company awareness of and interest in the whole of its community."

The bulk of the report consists of lists of organizations which can provide employers with minority members as prospective employees in various areas of the state.

The manual also contains several checklists which the commission says will help employers determine whether their personnel policies provide nondiscriminatory employment opportunities.

The manual was first published by the commission in 1968.

Car Topics

A FRIEND IN NEED

Girls, here's a little tip that may go a long way toward establishing you as someone special - really an individual - among your friends. Become a door jamb checker.

This hobby will tell you a lot about your friends (even more than the white glove test on window sills) and it may do them some good.

Here is how it goes: You are invited to a tea. When all the guests have arrived and are busily chatting away, you sneak outside, open car doors one by one and examine the lube stickers on door jambs.

Make a note of the mileage when each car was last serviced (what was done and when) and another note of the mileage on the odometer. Then put the license number adjacent to these vital statistics.

When you come back into the house, notes in hand, some of the guests will be looking at you askance. This is all right. They are curious. The stage is yours.

"Mildred," you say, "I notice that you are two months overdue for an oil change."

"Mildred," Millie's face will redden, and she probably will mumble something about only driving her car to and from the grocery lately.

Don't respond at this point. Instead, move on to license FL 4240. "Whose car is that...Pauline? You have had two oil changes and no filter."

"And Mary Ann, you've had only one lube job in nine

"I'm glad to see that at least you are functioning right on schedule, Betty."

The crowd begins to close in on you, but hold your position. Say, "I don't mean to be personal, girls, but you wouldn't neglect your automatic washers or your vacuums that way."

Go on to explain that the oil does more than lubricate engine parts. It cleans and cools, too. The filter gets all the dirt and contamination and eventually becomes clogged- full of sludge and goo.

"Further, " you admonish, "A lube job gives your serviceman a chance to check over your whole car while it is on the lift. I noticed you have a bad tire, Jane."

Your friends are speechless. So to avoid further embarrassment, you move on to the next party. Don't you feel good about this? You know what they say about a friend in need.

"PEST CONTROL"

The Office of Attorney General John C. Danforth, noting that this is a peak time of year for pest control activities, today offered advice for homeowners on extermination services.

Elderly persons living alone are particularly vulnerable to scare tactics used by some termite exterminators, Danforth's office noted. These operators have been known to warn elderly homeowners that their houses would be burned down to prevent the spread of termites if extermination services were not procurred immediately.

As a first step, homeowners who believe they have termites may contact their building contractor or city license inspectors, advised Christopher S. "Bond" of the Consumer Protection Division. These persons can, sometimes for a modest fee, advise whether the house is infested with pests and treatment is needed.

"The Consumer Protection Division has had numerous complaints caused by a small number of sharp operators who have the uncanny ability to find termites where there are none. Sometimes these termite experts carry their own termites in case they cannot find any on their 'free inspection' tours," Bond reported. "Other complaints reaching the Consumer Protection Division allege that the supposed exterminators use a harmless soap solution that is almost totally ineffective for killing termites.

"If you need pest control services, the second step is to make sure the firm which you choose is a reliable one. The Better Business Bureau or your local Chamber of Commerce can give you information on whether the firm you are considering is a reputable one."

Bond stated that there are many reputable pest control concerns in the state and they should not be confused with the unscrupulous few. "The legitimate firms not only perform an effective service, they are customarily much less expensive than the unscrupulous operators. This is a further reason why it is so important to know the firm with which you are dealing."

A catchpole is a constable. bailiff or other petty law officer who serves warrants and makes arrests.
